MYSTERY IN DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Young Married Man of Greenfield and Mill Girl Found Slain on Bridge

Greenfield, Aug. 2.—Clifford C. Wright, a young married man of this town, was found shot dead and sitting at the wheel of an automobile on the Sunderland bridge over the Connecticut river at 6 a. m. today, with Miss Hazel Tanner of Turner's Falls shot to death on the floor of the bridge beside the car. Each had a bullet wound in the right temple.

Murder and suicide or double suicide is believed by the police and Medical Examiner G. F. Pritchell to be back of the dual tragedy.

A revolver, with three bullets and two empty shells, was found on the floor of the car.

LETTER TELLS OF TRIP.

Close by the revolver was a folded handkerchief pierced with bullet holes. The handkerchief had evidently been held to the temple of either the man or the girl and a shot fired through it.

A note was found in the bosom of Miss Tanner's dress. It was addressed

RUSSIA AND FINLAND OPEN PEACE PARLEY

Amsterdam, Aug. 2.—Peace negotiations between Russia and Finland have been opened at Berlin, said a dispatch from Stockholm today, quoting a dispatch printed in the Svenska Dagblad. One of the conditions it was said was that all of the land fortifications built by Russia in Finland shall be dismantled save those at Viborg and Helsingfors.

PRISONERS MEETING TO BE IN SWITZERLAND

Washington, Aug. 2.—The Swiss government has accepted "the permanency of the American-German prisoner conference," according to a communication received by the State Department today. The Swiss government will furnish the rooms for the conference, it was stated, and the President of the republic will open the conference, which will be held in Berne in the latter part of this month.

OFFER PLANS TO SOLVE ATLANTIC AVENUE PUZZLE

Further attempts to make Atlantic Avenue a suitable teaming thoroughfare was made today when the Boston Chamber of Commerce sent to Mayor Peters a list of suggestions. The Chamber frankly admits in its communication that so many committees are interested in the movement that the project is about as congested as the avenue itself.

GERMAN PRESS ADMITS THE TIDE IS TURNING

The Hague, Aug. 2.—"We must admit that the Entente has overcome the crisis caused by the collapse of Russia," says the Frankfurter Zeitung, in reviewing the war situation, according to a dispatch from Frankfort today. The paper added: "It must be granted that the submarine campaign still leaves the situation tolerable for the enemy."

RED CROSS LEADERS GUESTS AT MRS. NIXON'S PARTY

Mrs. Lewis Nixon gave a lawn fete in honor of General and Mrs. Gorgas at her Staten island home. Among those present were Miss Florence M. Johnson, head of the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross (left) and Miss Martha Russell, head of the American Red Cross in France, who has just returned from the front. N. E. RATE PLEA SENT DIRECT TO McADOO

Service Boards Demand Retention of Differentials Which Have Brought Business Here

An appeal to Director-General McAdoo for relief from "unjust and unreasonable" freight rates in New England is contained in a twenty-three page memorial presented by the public service commissions of the New England States.

Protests are made:

1—Against raising to a standard all-rail basis the lower scale, which for forty years has prevailed to differential territory to and from the West over the Grand Trunk, Canadian Pacific and Rutland routes.

2—Against the equalization of rates to and from Atlantic ports.

3—Against the abolition of rail and water rates.

4—Against existing violations of the Interstate Commerce Act in class rates.

5—Against the proposed con rates.

6—That the general rate level is now higher than the situation demands.

DIFFERENTIALS AIDED N. E.

The memorial sets forth that the domestic and export business of this section has been built on the differential rates, the removal of which would "strike a damaging blow at New England ports and industries."

The proposition is characterized as one "to deprive Boston and smaller New England ports of their one compensating advantage, and leave their competitors all they now enjoy."

"No war conditions or other emergency demand elimination of these differentials," says the document, "whether any revenue advantage in the long run would result is very doubtful. Federal control of railroads may be only temporary. Until their future status is more definitely determined, the government should guard against radical changes not required for prosecution of the war.

"Compromise proposal to retain differentials on certain commodities, and eliminate them for other traffic is unsound.

ASK TIME LIMIT.

"Permanent disappearance of rail and water differentials would be most unfortunate. We request that increase to all-rail basis be strictly limited in time, so that the power rates will prevail when normal conditions are restored. Rail-and-water rates from Boston via Boston & Maine, Grand Trunk and Canadian Atlantic Transit have always been lower than standard rates. They have now been raised higher than all-rail rates. Rates ought at least to has reduced to all-rail differential level.

16 LEADERS BARRED AT LYNN

Nearly a Score of Union Men Refused Work When 14,000 Strikers Return

The sixteen men whose discharge for union activity was one of the prime causes of the General Electric strike at Lynn were refused work when the 14,000 strikers returned to work today under their agreement to accept intervention by the National War Labor Board at Washington.

Each of the sixteen, as he reported to his respective foreman, was told: "No work for you."

The sixteen lost no time in reporting their cases to William A. Nealey, vice-president of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, at strike headquarters.

Mr. Nealey prepared a protest to forward to the National War Labor Board.

He said, however, that the unions would abide by the decision of the national board in the matter.

The strikers returned to work without friction, outside of the sixteen men mentioned. The two great plants, the River Works and the one at West Lynn, resumed its normal hum of war time pressure.

It was noticed that the company guards, who have been stationed at the doorways of departments, were on duty inside the rooms today in the uniforms of special police.

The strike committee members who returned yesterday from Washington announced today that the minimum wage for unskilled women workers at the Pittsfield plant of the General Electric had been increased from thirteen to thirty cents an hour. Unskilled men at Pittsfield are raised to forty cents an hour.

If decisions of the National War Labor Board on the Pittsfield, Schenectady and Fort Wayne plants of the company are to apply to the Lynn plants, as understood, the increase for unskilled women workers at Pittsfield will mean an increase of about $2 a week for those at Lynn. It will mean an increase for unskilled men at Lynn ranging from 15 to 17½ cents per hour.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN DROPS DEAD IN STREET

An unidentified man dropped dead in south Boston early today while walking on the sidewalk at No. 556 Broadway. He was about sixty-five years old, five feet eight inches tall and weighed 135 pounds. He was of dark complexion, with gray eyes and hair, and was smooth shaven. He was taken into the office of Dr. F. W. Stuart, outside of which he had fallen, and the police notified the medical examiner. It is believed that death was due to heart trouble.

16 PROCLAIM SIEGE IN UKRAINIA

Peasants Storming Kiev Jail to Free Ex-Premier Mowed Down by German Guns

By International News Service.

Geneva, Aug. 2.—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Ukrainia following the assassination of Field Marshal von Eichorn at Kiev, according to the Strassburger Post.

Thousands of peasants stormed the jail at Kiev in an attempt to rescue Former Premier Golubevitch, but were mowed down by German machine guns.

Zurich, Aug. 2.—Several hundred German secret service agents have been sent into Ukrainia from Warsaw, according to information received here today.

Amsterdam, Aug. 2.—The possibility of the re-establishment of the Eastern fighting front is being apprehensively discussed by the Austro-German press as a result of the reverses in the Murmansk region, Siberia and Ukrainia. Advices from German sources today said that the Austro-German papers were viewing the situation in the East with a depressed attitude.

CAPTURE OF GERMAN ARMY BY FOCH ONLY A RUMOR

A wild rumor that General Foch had captured a whole German army on the Aisne-Marne salient was traced from Boston to New York and back again to Boston this morning. Boston commercial houses received the rumor from confidential correspondents in New York. The rumor was traced to the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, and later was found to have originated in this city. It is apparently without foundation.

SOMERVILLE AUTOIST HELD ON DEATH CHARGE

Ralph C. Hight, thirty-two, of Highland avenue, Somerville, was held in $500 on a manslaughter charge in Somerville Court today. Tuesday his auto collided with a motorcycle driven by George H. Small, nineteen, of Boston avenue, Medford, and carrying as a passenger George Willis, twenty-one, of Pinckney place, East Somerville. Willis died at the Somerville Hospital. Small is still a patient, suffering from a fractured skull and multiple injuries. Hight was charged with manslaughter, recklessly driving an auto and violation of traffic rules. He will have a hearing August 5.

TWO ASSISTANT FIRE ENGINEERS PROMOTED

The following promotions have been made in the Fire Department of the City of Boston: Assistant Engineer Eugene G. Yeowomen's Headgear Stirs Nest In Naval District

There's a hornet's nest in the First Naval District over women's hats.

The styles, just three, do not exactly appeal to most of the yeowomen.

The turban style is the most acceptable.

"The other styles will just look horrid when I'm in white," is one of the complaints heard.

"That thing," referring to one style, "will look like thirty cents on me," is another comment.

Miss Florence Hickey, chairman of the committee keeping the yeowomen slick, is non-committal.

W. U. LOCKS OUT MEMBERS OF UNION

St. Louis Threatened With Wire Tieup; Men Send Appeal to Wilson

By International News Service.

St. Louis, Aug. 2.—A complete tie-up of wire communication with the outside world threatened St. Louis today. Twenty-one Western Union operators were locked out, twenty-five more slated for discharge and indications were that there would be a general walkout unless the government took action immediately.

Messages have been sent to President Wilson and Postmaster General Burleson, urging intervention. Up to the present no action has been taken by the government to either reinstate the men now out or to stop the dismissals of men scheduled for today.

George A. Smith, one of the discharged operators, sent the following telegram to President Wilson:

"With three sons in the army, one in France on the firing line and I myself doing all in my power to support your great and just ideals for human liberty, I was unmanly dismissed by the Western Union tonight, despite the fact that we are under government control, for not other reason than for wearing my union emblem.

"I was told by the chief operator that union men were not to be employed, as the government had not changed the policy of the company. Besides myself there were fifteen others dismissed for the same cause, several of whom have little children. What is America's answer to this?"

LEAPS TO HIS DEATH FROM BURNING PLANE

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 2.—Leaping from a burning plane 1,000 feet in the air, an army aviator from Love Field, near here, met death today. The machine was destroyed. Witnesses saw the plane burst into flames, and the pilot jumped to escape burning to death.

Chanute Field, Ill., Aug. 2.—Flying Cadet Rogers of New York city was killed in an airplane accident here today.

258,000 GERMANS LOST IN 16 DAYS IN FOCH TRAP

London, Aug. 2.—Since the start of the German drive on July 15 it is estimated that the enemy has lost more than 258,000 men, 225,000 in killed and wounded, and 33,400 prisoners.

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 2 (1:50 P. M.)—The capture of Ville-en-Tardenois from the Germans is imminent and a slow retirement of the Germans to the Vesle River was predicted by competent military critics this afternoon. Cutting into the German lines on the heights north of Fere-en-Tardenois, the allies continue their slow, but steady, progress. The advance is giving the allied artillery command of all the roads leading from Soissons to Rheims.

Fismes, Boaches and Brazine, three important rail points, are being taken under harassing fire.

By EARLE C. REEVES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Aug. 2 (12:59 P. M.).—The most important allied advance since the German retreat started on the Marne was made when the French captured the Ourcq-Aisne watershed, it was learned here this afternoon. The allies advanced to a maximum depth of three miles over a front of five miles, between Lepleissiere Heleu and the Arcy wood. The French captured Goussancourt.

The situation on the whole western front is now satisfactory to the allies and there is every reason to believe, it was authoritatively declared this afternoon, that General Foch's counter-offensive is the turning point of the Summer campaign and possibly of the war itself.

The French and British have placed their lines well down the northern slopes that dominate the valley of the Crise, where reserves of German infantry and field artillery were held.

The allied advance extended in a northeasterly direction.

YANKEES, OUTNUMBERED AT CIERGES, HALT FOE IN BAYONET CHARGE

CAPTURE PRISONERS IN BATTLE LAUNCHED AT DAYBREAK

By NEWTON C. PARKE
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army at the Aisne, Aug. 2.—Severe fighting developed today along the entire front held by the Americans east of Fere-en-Tardenois, when the Germans, backed by strong reinforcements, surged forward in thick waves and attempted to recapture Cierges and oust us from our positions across the Ourcq by turning the right wing.

The attack was developed during the night, the boche carrying up scores of light machine guns before dawn.

The heavy German smash was directed northward of Cierges where we had made progress during the fighting late yesterday. Some of the newly conquered low ground had to be given back to the enemy, but he was again forced back this morning by an irresistible dash of two American companies that used the bayonet freely.

AMERICANS OUTNUMBERED

The German blow north and northeast of Cierges was begun with heavy counter attacks against our positions along the Seringes-Sergy line, the Germans again carrying up large numbers of machine guns which they used freely.

The fighting was continued late this afternoon with the situation extremely satisfactory for the Americans at every point.

A few prisoners taken by us reported that they had been ordered to retake Cierges and push southward to the Ourcq, at the same time turning against our right.

Indications were that the Americans were greatly outnumbered around Cierges, but the dough-boys again proved their worth as bayonet fighters.

Although the artillery was quite lively throughout the night, on both sides, the battle today was one of infantry and machine guns.

GUN BATTLE ON HILLS.

As one went towards the front this morning he heard none of the rumble of the guns accompanying the severe actions on the other fronts. There were only occasional bursts from our own batteries and dull crumps of arriving shells from the German batteries on the wooded plateau across the Ourcq.

But across the intervening valleys could be heard faintly the steady rata-tat of the machine guns from the heights where the Americans and Germans were engaged under a broiling sun.

French, American and British Paved the Way for Scottish Advance

By HENRY G. WALES.

With the American Army at the Marne, Aug. 1.—(Night)—How French, American and British batteries worked side by side paving the way for the Scottish advance near Hunancy (south of Soissons) on July 23, is revealed in a letter from Lord Denbigh, in Paris, to the London Daily Mail.

After the Scottish troops had relieved the Americans of General Mangin's army and the Yankees had marched to the rear, the commander of the American artillery offered to keep his batteries on the line to reinforce the gun fire preliminary to the attack the next day. The British gladly assented, so that the rolling barrage which opened the way for the infantry came from the throats of American cannon as well as from British and French guns.

The American batteries remained in action for several days along with the British and French in that district.

British Report More Artillery Activity in Somme Valley Sector

London, Aug. 2.—Artillery activity in the Somme Valley sector of the Picardy front has increased, the British War Office reported today. During the night the British captured prisoners and a machine gun in a raid north of Albert.

The War Office statement reads:

"Hostile artillery showed increased activity south of the Somme. It was active also north of Bethune, south of Ypres and east of Hazebrouck. British patrols took some prisoners in the Festubert region. English troops carried out a successful raid north of Albert, capturing sixteen prisoners and a machine gun."

Ambassador Francis' Cablegram of Trip to Murmansk Received

Washington, Aug. 2.—The State Department today received a communication from Ambassador Francis telling of his contemplated move to Murmansk, and evidently filed before the two messages recently made public here, it was announced.

"Have left Archangel on the eve of the 28th," the cable said, "accompanied by the French, British, Italian, Serbian, Japanese and Chinese chiefs."

The ambassador added that the last cable he had received from the State Department was dated July 2.

FRENCH AND AMERICANS MAKE FURTHER GAINS

tightening the "pocket" south of the Aisne-Vesle line, through which the Germans are retiring and which must be held open if the whole German front is to be maintained. It was difficult today to see how the Germans could avoid an early retirement to the Vesle.

The Germans have employed seventy-two divisions (864,000 men) since July 15. Eleven of these were from Prince Rupprecht's army. The Germans had to use eight of their divisions over a second time. The allies have not used anything like the number of men employed by the Germans. It is difficult to see how the enemy can refill divisions, military men say.

Whole German Position Imperilled by Advance

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

The new allied advance which began between the Aisne and Marne rivers yesterday and has continued ever since has put the whole German front between Fere-en-Tardenois and Ville-en-Tardenois in peril.

French, America and British troops are striking over a wide front along the western flank and the lower side of the German salient, gaining from one to more than three miles and increasing the total number of German prisoners since the beginning of the counter-drive on July 18 to about 25,000.

That another immediate German retirement—perhaps all the way to the Vesle river line—is inevitable, is strongly indicated by the successful developments of the past twenty-four hours. Between Soissons and the Ourcq river the allies have drawn tighter the neck of the "pocket" through which the Germans are retiring and have made important progress in the encircling movement against Soissons itself.

The Ourcq-Aisne watershed has been wrested from the Germans, along with commanding high ground in the Courdoux-Launoy sector, as well as the villages of Cramoiselle, Cramaille, Courdoux and Severnay.

A small German salient that bulged into the allied front in that area was wiped out and the French and British pushed their lines well down the northern slopes that dominate the valley of the Crise River. The fighting continued into the night, the French War Office, in its communique today, stating that "fresh progress has been made."

At last accounts the allied battle line in that zone was a bare six miles from the Vesle River, while heavy pressure continued in the direction of the German-held railway junction at Bazoches and the German base at Fismes.

Allied air observers reported that Fismes was in flames, but whether it had been set afire by allied shells or was being destroyed by the Germans was not known.)

On the lower side of the rapidly diminishing German salient the French have captured Gousseancourt, following the fall of Meuniere wood to the Americans.

Gousseancourt lies immediately northeast of this wood. The town itself is five miles southwest of Ville-en-Tardenois, and nearly ten miles southeast of Fere-en-Tardenois. The territory about Gousseancourt is covered with a network of highways, which are being taken in the Allied rush one by one.

Military experts regard the present advance by the Allies as one of the most important since the beginning of the German retreat from the Marne river. Its value does not lie so much in ground gained as the strategical advance which it gives the Allies in compelling the Germans to retreat still further over a wide front.

Demands for Peace and Political Freedom Grow Louder in Germany

Zurich, Aug. 2.—Demands for peace and political freedom are growing louder in Germany.

"The peace cry dominates," said a dispatch from Frankfort today, quoting the Gazette. It continued:

"We cannot see the end of the war, and meanwhile American legions daily cross the ocean. Our fight has become uneasy."

The Schwabische Tagwacht declared that "Germany cannot win while half absolute and half bureaucratic, but must have true political freedom." This paper is demanding the retirement of Chancellor von Hertling.

At Schaffenhausen, in southern Germany, the pan-Germans have formed an organization to combat the Social democrats.

Fismes, Great German Base, Reported on Fire; Americans Take Cierges

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army at the Marne, Aug. 2.—Fismes, the great German base on the Rheims-Soissons railway, is in flames, air observers report.

Following thirty-six hours of continual fighting—counter attacking and bayonet work—the American battalion of former lumberjacks that threw the Germans out of Cierges (southeast of Fere-en-Tardenois) have consolidated their new position beyond the village.

Despite a heavy downpour of rain the Americans continued their operations northward of Meuniere wood, thrusting the Germans back.

After the Germans had been swept out of the wood at the point of the bayonet the line was established at the northern edge of the forest. There were sanguinary hand-to-hand conflicts there.

The Germans abandoned field guns, machine guns and wounded in the wood.

The French War Office, in its communique on Thursday night, announced the capture of the height north of Grand Honoy, Cierges and Meuniere wood, and stated that the French had reached Cramoiselle and Cramaille, passing beyond the village of Beugneux. This represented a gain of nearly two miles.

French Make Further Progress North of Marne, Paris War Office Says

Paris, Aug. 2.—"The French made further progress north of the Marne River in the course of the night," the War Office announced today.

U. S. AVIATORS GET 8 PLANES OF ENEMY

With the American Army at the Marne, Aug. 2.—Eight German airplanes were shot down yesterday by American aviators—Lieutenant Donald Hudson of Kansas City destroying three of the enemy machines within five minutes.

It was a record day for the Americans.

One German machine each was downed by Ivan A. Roberts of South Lee, Mass., Rulff Nevins of Los Angeles, Robert E. Cates of Spartanburg, S. C.; Harold Buckles of Manchester, N. H., and Jerry E. Vasconnells of Denver.

Two German observation balloons were set on fire by Aviators William E. Brotherton of Guthrie, Ill., and L. E. Holden of New York.

American pursuit squadrons during the morning met the late Baron von Richthofen's old "checkerboard escadrille," so named because of the insignia stencilled on the fuselage. The eight victims were all from this organization.

Lieutenant Hudson set a new mark for American airmen when he downed three German planes in five minutes. He was attacked by eight Fokkers in the vicinity of Fere-en-Tardenois. Hudson quickly sent down one of his adversaries in flames while the others scattered.

Then Hudson engaged a pair of two-seater observation machines, shooting them down a few seconds apart. The intrepid American shot the wings off both German planes.

In the meantime, however, the two-seaters had "sent up" Hudson's airplane to such an extent that he had to return to his base.

The enemy has reinforced his airmen on the Marne salient during the past twenty-four hours.

Allied Guns and Aviators Destroying Bridges Along Line of Enemy's Retreat

London, Aug. 2.—American and French guns and allied aviators are destroying the bridges across the Vesle, between Soissons and Rheims, cutting off the lines of retreat for the army of the German Crown Prince in the salient. Americans are also bombarding Fismes, the key position of the enemy forces.

MELLEN CHARGES HE FOUND WIFE'S LOVE LETTERS TO HOTEL MAN

SUIT FILED BY FORMER R.R. CHIEF

Asks Separation and Says Wife Deserted Him When He Gained Possession of Letters

Pittsfield, Aug. 2.—Charles S. Mellen of Stockbridge, former president of the New Haven Railroad, has filed a petition in the Berkshire Probate Court for a separation from his wife, Katherine Livingston Mellen, now of New York, alleging desertion.

In his petition Mr. Mellen charged that, beginning January 1, 1912, Mrs. Mellen continually absented herself from his home without his consent, and sometimes without his knowledge, for periods of from one to four weeks. He stated that on September 17, while Mrs. Mellen was absent from the household, she learned that he had acquired possession of letters written by her and that she had since remained away.

It is alleged that the letters were written by Mrs. Mellen to H. Douglas Brown, one of the assistant managers of the Vanderbilt Hotel, New York.

WIFE IN LOVE SUIT.

On November 23, 1917, Mrs. Margaret Brown, wife of H. Douglas Brown, brought suit against Mrs. Mellen for $100,000, alleging that Mrs. Mellen had alienated her husband's affections. She charged that immediately after the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Brown affectionate letters had been written to Brown by Mrs. Mellen, that Mrs. Mellen gave Mr. Brown expensive presents and sought opportunity to be in his company.

The separation trial will probably take place in September, it was said here.

Mr. Mellen further represents that he desires to be enabled to convey his real estate as if he were unmarried. He is a legal resident of New Haven, but owns an estate of 400 acres at Council Grove or Stockbridge.

WERE MARRIED IN 1893.

Mr. Mellen and Katherine Lloyd Livingston, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Livingston, were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., November 16, 1893. They have five children, Katherine, Raymond, Amory, Candace and Priscilla, ranging in age from twenty-one to eleven years. Miss Katherine is with her mother in New York and the others are with their father in Stockbridge. It was Mr. Mellen's second marriage, and her first. By his first marriage, Mr. Mellen has a son, Graham K. Mellen of New Haven. Mr. Mellen now is sixty-seven years of age and Mrs. Mellen is forty-six.

Mr. Mellen has over 100 acres under cultivation in Stockbridge, including fifteen acres of wheat, and he has just built a flour mill, the only one on a private estate in Berkshire. He has the finest herd of Dutch belted cattle in western Massachusetts.

DANVERS SCHOOL BOYS TO HELP THOSE IN FRANCE

The boys at St. John's School, Danvers, are planning to go "over the top" for their brothers who are at present in the front line trenches. A meeting has been called for tonight at 274 Washington street, Union square, Somerville, at which definite and detailed plans for a reunion will be made. It is the intention of the members of the alumni "over there" to produce something in commemoration of the large representation from the membership of the alumni now overseas.

INQUEST ON DEATH OF MITCHELL AT QUINCY

A secret inquest in the case of the death of Philip Mitchell, son of Max Mitchell of Boston, who was killed in an automobile accident June 17 in Quincy, was held by Judge Kenneth Nash in the Quincy District Court today. Assistant District Attorney Kane and Chief of Police Kane represented the Government. Judge Nash will make known his findings later. The accident occurred when automobiles owned by Max Mitchell and William H. Doble, of Quincy, collided.

ICEMAN FINED $10 FOR STEALING $2 BILL

Charged with stealing a $2 bill while delivering ice, John R. Brennan, of No. 563 East Broadway, South Boston, an iceman employed by the Boston Ice Company, was found guilty and fined $10 by Judge Day in the South Boston court today. The theft took place while Brennan was leaving a piece of ice at the home of Mrs. Rebecca Lonergan, No. 72½ I street.

LEAGUE HELPS CONVALESCENTS TO HELP THEMSELVES

By MARIE DUNBAR.

The Tide-Over League, an organization which has brought cheer to hundreds of leaden hearts and courage to many disheartened souls, has shown and taught people who would otherwise be helpless burdens how to care for themselves, and is going to break the gloom for the wounded soldiers. It has carried many a person from the depths of despair to a useful, energetic life.

In the two years the league has cared for hundreds of sick persons. The league attempts to teach convalescing patients to weave, knit, embroider and make fine pieces of needlework; in general, to care for themselves and, as the name points out, to earn money enough to live on until they can resume their regular occupations.

Since the war the scope of the Tide-Over League has widened. At first it handled just the convalescing patients, but early in the spring the course for students who intend to aid in the reconstruction work opened.

These students are fitting themselves to go abroad to teach or even to stay at home and aid the soldiers returning to this country and unfit to take up their former occupations.

"But the soldier will not be forced to tread the dark path alone; he will not feel himself a charitable object, he will not be considered useless, for these students will immediately teach weaving and various other kinds of handiwork. Weaving and work at the loom tend to wake up all the senses, to arouse interest and aid concentration.

CURE FOR SHELL SHOCK.

Because of its power to physically and mentally aid the sick, this class of work is considered one of the surest cures of shell shock and all nerve troubles.

Convalescing patients who yesterday could care for themselves, today feel the need of money-to help them until they can work steadily; yesterday they would have been cared for by their families, but many are now war dependents. They are not receiving charity when they work for the league, as the articles which they make are placed on sale.

This is one class that has been ushered into the league by the war. The other class for which the bright light of this organization will shine is composed of the wounded, incapacitated soldiers returned from overseas after they have sacrificed arms, legs, suffered from shell shock, and have a feeling of utter uselessness.

Yesterday at Manchester-by-the-Sea, under the direction of Mrs. George E. Warren, a sale of goods made by the convalescing patients was held. Beautiful rugs, exquisite articles of embroidery, knitted socks, luncheon sets with the finest of hand-made lace, lovely soft silken scarfs, dainty baby clothes, bags and attractive little knickknacks were on sale.

NORTH SHORE SALE.

The sale was very successful, and North Shore residents visited the display at No. 28 Central street, Manchester, all day, and dug deep down in their bags and bought generously for the benefit of the cause.

A shop at No. 296 Boylston street is open daily, where lovely pieces of work may be purchased. Donations and annual subscriptions to the Tide-Over League fund are always welcome.

Mrs. George E. Warren, prominent in the league; Mrs. Freeman Allen, acting chairman, Miss Mary Irving Husted, director, and assistants, Miss Gladys G. Jones and Miss Kate Van Cleve, were present at yesterday's sale.

At top, Committee of the Tide-Over League, in charge of sale at Manchester-by-the-Sea of articles made by convalescents. Left to right: Mrs Thomas Motley, Jr., secretary, holding a bag made by convalescent workers; Mrs. George E. Warren, wearing an apron made by a patient; Mrs. Freeman Allen, displaying a woven rug. Lower picture: Miss Kate Van Cleve, holding a pair of dainty booties. The pillow of blue, pink and white was the work of a patient's efforts.

RALLIES TO STIMULATE PRODUCTION OF COAL

Washington, Aug. 2.—In the campaign for the stimulation of coal production now being conducted among the miners by the Fuel Administration a production committee has been formed, it was announced this afternoon. The committee will, through patriotic rallies, speeches and example, urge miners to do their bit by better production.

WILSON KEEPS UP DRIVE FOR SUFFRAGE

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 2.—President Wilson today continued his drive to round up support of the Susan B. Anthony equal suffrage amendment in the Senate. In a letter to Senator David Baird, of New Jersey, the President urged that the junior senator from his own State support the measure.

The President in his letter expresses the belief that the present position of this country in international affairs would be greatly strengthened by the passage of the amendment and that "Our present position as champions of democracy throughout the world" would be greatly strengthened if the Senate would follow the example of the House of Representatives in passing the pending amendment.

"I, therefore, take the liberty of writing to call the matter to your serious attention in this light and to express the hope that you will deem it wise to throw your influence on the side of this great and now critical reform.

"Sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

STORE GUNMAN HELD IN $7,500 FOR HEARING

John Smereter, who shot the manager of the Specialty Shop, No. 122 Tremont street, yesterday afternoon, and also wounded the assistant manager, throwing women employes and shoppers into a panic, was arraigned before Judge Dowd in Municipal Court today. He was held in $7,500 bonds for a hearing August 14.

Thomas P. Cox, manager of the store, whose jaw was broken by a shot from Smereter's revolver, is in a serious condition at the Relief Hospital. An operation will be required to mend his jaw and remove the bullet from the cheek.

David P. Hall, the assistant manager, who went to his chief's aid and was struck over the head by Smereter's pistol butt, left the hospital for his home during the night, a bad scalp wound having been treated.

When Smereter appeared in court today his head was swathed in bandages from the battering he received at the hands of the crowd which gathered outside the store after the shooting. John Calahan, a Boston Elevated employe, felled Smereter with a blow with a heavy pair of pliers, when the latter seemed on the point of breaking away.

POWER PLANTS MAY BE TAKEN BY U. S.

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Emergency legislation to meet the present power shortage in the East, which is hampering many war industries, including shipbuilding, will be asked by the administration as soon as Congress reconvenes.

A bill authorizing the President to take over, construct, extend and operate power plants and transmission lines drawn by the war industries board was placed in the hands of Chairman Sims of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee today.

Under the bill it is proposed to construct huge power generating plants immediately at the mouths of coal mines, where waste from the mines and culm of comparatively little value could be utilized in the generation of power. The power could be transmitted over high tension to any industry within a radius of 300 miles of the mines.

It proposes leasing water power sites for periods of 50 years and allows three years for preliminary surveys.

Opposition to the major measure is growing and there is some ground for believing it may be defeated although it is an administration measure.

PUBLIC WATCHES CONDUCTORS CLOSELY

Forced to Pay 2 Cents More on L, Many Wonder When Carman Puts Cash in Pocket

Talk about your seven-cent Hawkshaws.

Watch Elevated passengers watch the conductors, now that the nickel fare has gone up two cents.

The psychological answer is that, being forced to pay two cents extra, the passenger is bound to have the money go straight.

Hence the hard eye upon conductors to see no fares are "knocked down."

Naturally this vigilance sometimes "overleaps itself." For instance:

A man of struggling appearance reported to the Boston AMERICAN today that he had caught a conductor stealing fares. He deposed:

THOUGHT HE WAS RIGHT.

"I got on a prepayment car and gave the conductor a cash fare. Instead of selling me a ticket to drop in the box the conductor pocketed the money and let me go on to my seat. Now he should have given me a ticket and let me put it in the box; isn't that so?"

No, it isn't. When a passenger on a prepayment car offers a ticket which he has secured ahead, he puts it in the box. But, when he pays a cash fare, the conductor puts the money in his pocket—not in the box—and rings up a cash fare on the register.

The complainant in this case did not notice whether the conductor rang up a fare or not.

If the conductor did, then it was O. K. If he did not, then it was wrong, either accidentally or intentionally.

PUBLIC WATCHING CLOSELY.

But it all goes to show how the public, jealous of the increased fare, insists that it shall go into transportation and not into any conductor's private purse.

If you wish to buy tickets of the conductor you must buy them in strips of five for 35 cents. After buying your strip you still have to pay a fare, either cash or ticket.

On "one-prepayment" cars there are no ticket boxes yet. The conductor takes your ticket or your money and rings up a fare on his register.

Another argument was offered today that a person cannot pay a cash fare on a prepayment car, but must have a ticket ahead to get aboard, as the conductor can not sell him one.

The conductor cannot sell him a single ticket, only strips of five. But he can take a cash fare and ring it up, as aforesaid.

FUR SUSPECTS CAUGHT BY QUICK WATCHMAN

Following a larceny of thirty-eight pieces of fur valued at over $4,000 from Vaughn, Coppleman & Reid, furriers at Chelsea and Bedford streets, Philip Weinrobe, twenty-one, and Samuel Dullinger, twenty-four, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., were arrested today on charges of breaking and entering and larceny. The capture of the men was due to the quick thinking of Jacob Borbecker, janitor of the Harvey building. Early today the two men entered, it is alleged, and engaged Borbecker in conversation. While talking with one, Borbecker saw the other walk upstairs. A few minutes later the second went up. Borbecker telephoned the police. He met Weinrobe and Dullinger coming down the police say, with two suitcases filled with fur. He gave the men in charge to Sergeant Harvey and Patrolmen Andrews and O'Donnell arrived.

ARLINGTON MAN WILL JOIN BROTHER AT FRONT

Feeling that his brother John, who has been twice wounded while fighting, as a private in the ranks of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, should not be in France without a member of his family fighting by his side, Joseph Hamilton, 2d, of No. 30 Vernon street, Arlington, enlisted at the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission, No. 64 Bromfield street, today. Hamilton, who is a native of Fernagh, Ireland, will leave for Camp Aldershot at Kentville, N. S., on August 14. "I have had a number of letters from John since he has been at the front," said Hamilton today, "and he intimated that as a member of an Irish family that had every reason to be proud of its fighting ability, I should be in the service under the Union Jack. I do not think it fair to him for me to remain in this country in peace and comfort while he is risking his life for the honor of his country and his family." Hamilton is twenty-seven years old and single.

BOSTON GIRL'S APPEAL GETS COLONEL TO SPEAK

Islesboro, Me., Aug. 2. — Miss Dorothy Adams of Boston, who is in charge of a four-minute speaking campaign in this vicinity, has secured the services of former President Roosevelt, who will make his debut in that capacity here Sunday afternoon. Colonel Roosevelt came here for rest, but could not resist the appeal of Miss Forbes, Rev. Maitland Alexander, an old friend of the Colonel, will preside, and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson will sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

TWO GIRLS JAILED ON SHOPLIFTING CHARGE

Mary Hayes and May Mooney, former department store employes, were each given a six months' suspended sentence in Municipal Court today after they had been found guilty of shoplifting. Knowing the majority of female department store detectives, the police say, the girls were able for a long time to escape detection.

Guard Potato Crop From Scourge, Urges State Expert

Experts of the State Board of Agriculture are at work today trying to ascertain the cause of a mysterious scourge which is attacking potato plants throughout the State. According to Secretary Wilfred Wheeler of the board, the malady wastes the plants, and it is difficult to discover, because it causes little discoloration.

"In order to have any kind of a crop in the State those who have planted potatoes should give them constant care," says Secretary Wheeler. "The situation is serious as regards those potatoes, which should be ready for harvest about September 1. Late potatoes are coming along better."

COUPLE SLAIN ON BRIDGE AFTER AUTO RIDE

Greenfield Tragedy May Be Murder and Suicide or Death Pact

to her sister, Miss Grace Tanner, at their home, No. 42 Prospect street, Turner's Falls. It said that Hazel Tanner and Wright had started on an automobile trip last Saturday to Hartford and New Haven, Ct., and to New York city. It mentioned places where they stopped.

Grace Tanner said, when the news was broken to her, that Wright had been attentive to her sister, and that Hazel supposed Wright was a single man.

Clifford C. Wright, son of J. C. Wright of No. 88 Cleveland street, was twenty-two years old and lived at No. 25 Hastings street, Greenfield. He was a machinist in the gauge department of the Greenfield Tap and Die Corporation.

GIRL EMPLOYED IN MILL.

Hazel Tanner was twenty-four years old and the daughter of Charles Tanner. She and her sister Grace lived with their father, and were employed in the Esleeck paper mills at Turner's Falls.

The Sunderland bridge spans the Connecticut River between Sunderland and South Deerfield. A high, peaked hill of sugar-loaf formation adds to the scenic beauty of the spot.

The tragedies were discovered by Albert Burt of Sunderland. Wright was in the driver's seat of the roadster. His body leaned over to one side so that his head rested against the side frame of the top.

The car, headed toward Sunderland, was close by the rail on the downstream side of the bridge.

The girl's body was on the bridge between the car and the bridge rail.

The bodies were taken to the Greenfield undertaking place of J. J. Woodlock & Co., where the medical examiner made his examination.

The position of the bodies favored a murder theory in some ways. If a double suicide had been planned there would have been no reason for the girl getting out of the car, if they decided to end their lives where they were.

MURDER AND SUICIDE THEORY.

On a theory that Wright shot Miss Tanner and then killed himself it might be assumed that, following a quarrel, the girl started to get out of the car but was shot and killed by Wright before she could extricate herself from the small space between the car and the rail.

Carrying out this theory to include the pierced handkerchief, it may be that the girl, carrying her handkerchief in her right hand, instinctively put it to her head to shield herself," and the bullet pierced the handkerchief and then crashed through her temple. First description of the body made no mention, however, of marks on the hand.

The theory that the girl shot Wright and then killed herself is not being supported by the facts so far known.

A suggestion has been made of double murder, but the presence of the revolver in the car tends against that.

The news was broken to Wright's young wife while word was being sent to the Tanner home in Turner's Falls. The double tragedy has created the greatest excitement that this district has known for years.

MISS DRAKE IN BOSTON, SILENT ON WAR WORK

Leader of Camp Ordered Disbanded in Town With Mrs. Symons

Miss Ethel Langdon Drake and her companion, Mrs. Mary E. Symons, whose camp at Bayside, Long Island, for training wealthy young women as ambulance drivers in France, has been disbanded by order of the New York district attorney, arrived today at the Copley-Plaza from New York. They registered as from Soissons, France.

They left the hotel, saying they were going to consult a lawyer. Upon their return Miss Drake said that they had seen a lawyer. But she declined to answer any questions relative to the "Drake Section Sanitaire" collections made for it or other points in the case.

VISITED OLD LINCOLN HOME.

Miss Drake and Mrs. Symons are of striking appearance. They wear nun-like robes of black, with a Red Cross conspicuous on the front of the head covering.

The fact that Miss Drake was in her girlhood town of Lincoln last Saturday was established today. One of those who recognized her was former State Senator C. S. Smith, neighbor of the Drakes when the family lived there several years ago.

Miss Drake distributed in Lincoln some circulars announcing that she had been thanked by a French general for her war aid. Nothing was said in the general's thanks, however, of the ambulances which Miss Drake is said to have mentioned as among the prospective activities of the "Drake Section Sanitaire."

Miss Drake and her family are well remembered by older residents of Lincoln. The father was a dentist, Dr. Albert F. Drake, who practiced in Boston. The family home was in the Lincoln Hill section, near Sandy Pond. There were four sons. One is dead. After the father's death the family moved away. The sons are now in the West.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE.

Andrew J. Dougherty, garage owner and carriage man at Lincoln depot, is one of those recalling the family.

Ethel Langden Drake attended Lincoln High School. She was a good sized girl for her age, giving promise then of the height and figure she has attained in later years.

In her girlhood days Miss Drake, as townsfolk now recall, was a popular member of the youngest set—at boys and girls and had her due share in the social activities of the day.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY OF FILENE EMPLOYES

The annual field day of the Filene Co-operative association will be held tomorrow at Nonumbega Park. Fully 1200 employes, the largest number in many years, are expected.

The good time will last from morning until night, but the real fun will not start until 11.15 A. M., when the Girls' Club, under the direction of Miss Norah Callahan, will put on a minstrel show.

Following the show there will be a luncheon in the picnic grove. Everyone is expected to bring a lunch.

There will be sports for everyone—young, old, fat or lean. Field games will take up part of the afternoon. There will be a baseball game between the girls and one between the same number of men, and the winner in each event will take home the "goods" instead of the "bacon."

Then there will be a tug-of-war and a combat between the single and the married men, and last but not least the baseball game of the day.

During the field events there will be a ball game and a tennis tournament for which prizes have been offered by the firm to the winners.

STORE MANAGERS BEARERS AT J. B. BAILEY FUNERAL

The funeral of Jason B. Bailey, dry-goods merchant, took place today. His store in Boston was closed all day, and many of his employes attended the services. His store managers and buyers acting as pallbearers. Services were conducted at his home, No. 200 Corey street, West Roxbury, by Rev. Harold G. Arnold, pastor of the West Roxbury Unitarian Church.

GORKY ALIVE, ARREST IS ORDERED

Suppress Paper of Famous Author Whose Death Was Reported Recently

London, Aug. 2.—Maxim Gorky has been ordered arrested and his newspaper at Petrograd has been suppressed, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen to the Daily Express today.

A dispatch from a Swiss source two weeks ago stated that Gorky was dead.

HEAD OF BETHLEHEM SHIP INDUSTRY; HUB VISITOR

One of the most conspicuous examples of the energetic American "Captain of Industry" is Eugene E. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, who is now making an official inspection of the Fore River and Squantum plants of his firm.

WORLD'S STEEL PREMIER COMES TO BOSTON

E. E. Grace, Captain of Industry, Arrives to Inspect Shipbuilding

Eight years ago on a steam shovel. Today, at thirty-eight, "boss" of more than 70,000 men on a government job of $450,000,000.

That's the history of Eugene E. Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, who came to Boston today to inspect the Fore River and Squantum plants of his companies.

Grace, fresh from college, went to work as an electric craneman in 1899. Step by step he pushed his way upward until in 1911 he stepped into the vice-presidency. When Charles M. Schwab retired as president in 1916 he picked Grace—"the best steel maker in the world," he said—to take his place.

Mr. and Mrs. Grace reaching Boston by train motored to Quincy, where they are guests of Joseph W. Powell, vice-president of the company. Next Tuesday at 11 a. m. Mrs. Grace will christen the destroyer McDermott at Victory plant, Squantum.

GRADUATE OF LEHIGH.

Son of Capt. Wesley Grace, a master mariner, Eugene E. Grace seems to have inherhited the far sightedness and broad vision of the seafarer. He is a leader of men, at once pugnacious and diplomatic. He boasts with pride, "my men work with me and not for me."

Apparently he foresaw the great part electricity was to play in this era, and so equipped himself for the fray by taking a course in electrical engineering at Lehigh University.

Although captain of his ball team during his two last years at college, that he did not neglect his studies is shown by the fact that he won the prize for mathematics and was valedictorian of his class.

Graduated from college, Grace did not look for an easy job at a big salary. He applied at the Bethlehem Steel works for work as a laborer. He got a $15-a-week job and stuck to it. It was hard manual labor. Finally he attracted the attention of Schwab and became an electric craneman. That was the beginning of his rise.

MADE HIS FATHER RICH.

As he soared toward the top rung of the ladder it was characteristic of Grace that he did not forget those who had helped him. His aged father had stinted that he might get an education and a start on the road to prosperity.

A few years ago he went to his father, then running a small country grocery store in Goshen, N. Y., and urged him to sell out the grocery and let him invest the money.

"I sold out the store and borrowed some cash and gave it all to my son," says his father in telling about it. "Then I forgot all about it. Then one day Eugene told me I was worth several hundred thousand dollars. I certainly denied myself a good deal to give the boys an education, but I am getting pretty good returns now."

PRESIDENT AT 38.

Grace was but thirty-six years old when he stepped into the president's chair, two years ago. He went into that place with his employes at his back. And he has kept them solidly behind him all 70,000 of them.

He is a man of ideas. Shortly after becoming president he announced that he was working on a great construction program involving an outlay of more than $100,000,000, the largest ever undertaken by a single industrial corporation.

The only fight he ever lost was his attempt to prevent the government from erecting its own armor plant. He offered to allow the government to fix its own price for plate made at Bethlehem, but even this failed to prevent the passage of the bill.

One of President Grace's chief advisers is his brother, Wesley Grace, Jr., who is superintendent of the Bethlehem yards.

GASTON NAMES LABOR STAFF EXAMINERS

Eleven staff examiners were appointed today by Colonel William A. Gaston, United States Director of Employment for Massachusetts for the Department of Labor. They began work at once by setting up headquarters in the districts assigned. Those appointed are:

District 1, Lynn, Timothy J. Leonard; District 2, Lawrence, John T. Clare; District 3, Lowell, William E. McNamara; District 4, Framingham, Joseph M. Riley; District 5, Brockton, Aubrey E. Landry; District 10, New Bedford, Stanley K. Kerns; District 11, Worcester, William J. Green; District 12, Fitchburg, Henry H. Wilder; District 13, Greenfield, Arthur H. Sheridan; District 14, Springfield, Horace H. Howe; District 15, Pittsfield, Harry L. Dexter.

NONE NAMED FOR BOSTON.

No staff examiners for the four Boston districts were appointed, as the work in this city is now being effectively done. Those named are to investigate the work being done by the various community labor boards which are to handle the distribution of labor for war industries and see that they are functioning properly.

The community labor boards, which began their duties August 1, are to check the available labor for essential industries and submit plans to the state director for the mobilization of such labor for war work. They will determine local labor priority.

CONTROL LABOR MOBILIZATION.

By this plan the United States government intends to make effective what will eventually result in a complete monopoly of the control of labor mobilization and distribution in the country. The idea is to have the process democratic, protected from political and partisan manipulation and to inspire co-operation and confidence by competent service. The leading government officials believe that one of the most important labor problems in this country is to use men without waste. The present plan will eliminate the waste in the opinion of persons who have arranged it.

MUCH WASTAGE BY MOVING.

At present much time is wasted by working men shifting from one section to another, changing to jobs paying higher wages. Much valuable space in trains is occupied by this needless travel. By means of these community boards the government hopes to do away with this constant shifting of labor. It will try to point out to workmen places where they may chance to better positions without traveling from one end of the country to the other.

Competition among concerns in the same lines of work will be done away with. An effort will be made to equalize wages to prevent men going from one factory to another simply because one firm offers wages out of all proportion in order to get contracts out.

CHAOS REIGNS AS N. Y. SUBWAY IS OPENED

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 2.—Police reserves played the leading role in the inauguration of New York's new "H" subway system today. A summary made after the early morning rush hour showed thousands from thirty minutes to two hours late at their places of employment, many persons—mostly women—badly shaken up in scrambles for trains and a general demoralization of tube service from the Battery to the Bronx.

Many women fainted and some were taken to hospitals. Subway guards, many of them women, knew little more than the public about the new arrangements of trains and it was well after noon before things were running as usual.

CUTICURA HEALS PIMPLES ON FACE
Big, Hard and Red. Scaled Over. Itched and Burned.
"When I saw blackheads and pimples on my face I used to pinch them out, and more would come. The pimples were big and hard, and red, and when I picked them they scaled over. They itched and burned causing me to scratch so that I always had my face full of blood.
"Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using two boxes of Ointment with the Soap for two months, I was healed." (Signed) J. A. St. Rock, 2 S. Walnut Street, Wauregan, Conn., Feb. 8, 1918.
Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap and occasional touches of Cuticura Ointment.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer
This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolized wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the soiling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. Mercolized wax literally absorbs the scorched, discolored, withered or coarsened scarf skin, bringing forth a brand new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity.
An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings, will gradually improve even the worst complexion. There is nothing better for the removal of tan, freckles or blotches.—Advertisement.

ALIMONY FIGHT BEGUN BY MRS. HERRMAN

Show Girl Seeking Separation From Millionaire's Son; Also Asks Counsel Fees

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 2.—Dorothy Gates Herrman, the show girl who defeated in court the attempt of her millionaire father-in-law, James S. Herrman, to have annulled her marriage to Philip Herrman, has filed in the county court an application for counsel fee and alimony from her husband.

Through her attorney, Lucille Pugh, Mrs. Gates Herrman, who has instituted a suit for separation charging abandonment, denies she was the most active agent in bringing about her marriage to Philip. "Instead," she says, "it was the other way around." She demands $50 weekly and $500 for her attorney.

Plaintiff and defendant were married on Jan. 25, 1915, at which time the elder Mr. Herrman alleged his son was less than eighteen years old.

"When my husband's father, James S. Herrman, learned of our courtship," alleges the plaintiff, "he came to me and said he would not permit his son to marry me. I told him that we loved each other, and that I thought Philip capable of speaking for himself in the matter. Philip then told me that his father opposed our marriage and threatened to disinherit him if he married me.

SAYS SHE LOVED PHILIP.

"I loved Philip, and did not desire to see him disinherited on my account, and therefore told him that I intended to remain away from him for ten days, during which time he could think the matter over dispassionately. While away I received a letter, sent January 26, which was forwarded me from New York, as follows:

"Dearest Dorothy: 'How is my dear little girl? Much better, I hope. I have pretty near decided that this is a hum life anyhow. I can't stand it much longer anyhow. When are you coming back to me? Please write. I have gotten only one of your letters. How about ten more? If I don't get a letter from you soon something serious is going to happen. I can feel it coming on. What's the matter with one little flat up in Harlem? Same place, both of us working like dogs and getting about $20 par—nice, promising outlook. Never mind. Times will be better when the war stops.

"I am still set on pulling off that little marriage act.

"Please write and come back to New York. I have a good story to tell you, but I don't dare to write it out.

"How is that for an inducement to come back?

"Lovingly, PHIL.

"Notice the signature.

WRITES HE WANTS TO MARRY.

"I also received the following letter:

"'Dearest Dorothy: Please forgive me for not having written you before, but you will probably realize how busy I've ben when you hear all I have done in the last few days. Please do send me your address, and, tell me where you are in your next letter. I have decided what I want to do. I want to marry you and I am going to be in New York on the 5th of the month. Where can I see you on that day?

"Please came back by then. I am going to be out of town until then, but I will be looking for a job for 10 per. Beins the less, I've decided that the big event must come off on the afternoon of the 25th. The old man handed me a $20 bill and told me it would take me to college or any other place that I wanted to go. But to get the — out of his office, I took his word for it and came to Stamford, where I expect to put in a pretty good week. Write me at Stamford any day, please.

MARRIED ON JAN. 28.

"'I've been thinking that perhaps if I get some cash we could go down to Bermuda, or some such dump, for a few weeks. Am enclosing a couple of postals of the dump in Stamford. I must have something to tell you tomorrow.

"'Very sincerely, "'PHIL.'

"'P. S.—I love you.'"

"I immediately took the next train back to New York. On January 25 we were married," says the plaintiff.

Dorothy Gates Herrman is suing her father—in-law for $100,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

EASTPORT MAYOR GIVES SON TO UNCLE SAM

Eastport, Me., Aug. 2.—Among the twenty-eight young volunteers leaving for Fort Slocum to serve their country during the war was Edward Brooks Eldridge, the 18-year-old son of Mayor and Mrs. Fred T. Eldridge of this city. While he had tried to enlist more than a year ago, he had been advised to wait until after his graduation from the High School July 25. He went to Bangor and enlisted in the Engineers' Corps and returned home to await his call to duty, which came this week. He was former star player on the school basketball and baseball teams.

EX-GOV. WALSH WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

The campaign of former Governor David I. Walsh for the United States Senate will be formally opened at the organization meeting of the newly-formed Andrew J. Peters Club at No. 260 Dudley street, Roxbury, tonight. The candidacy of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald for the Senate had been endorsed by this club but with his withdrawal in favor of Mr. Walsh the club will support the latter. The meeting will be presided over by Charles I. Quirk. John F. Fitzgerald and Congressman James A. Gallivan are expected to speak.

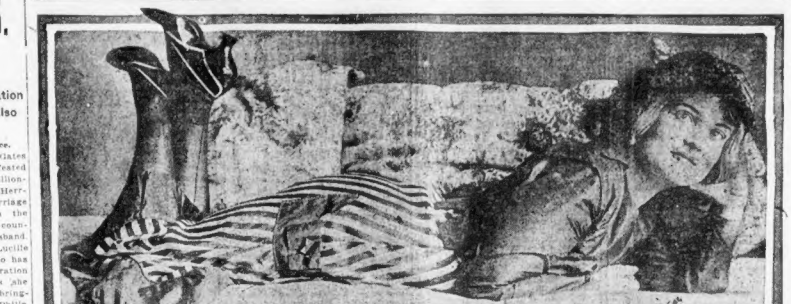
DOROTHY GATES HERRMAN BEGINS BATTLE FOR ALIMONY



This is the showgirl who married Philip Herrman, son of James S. Herrman, millionaire. Besides seeking $50 weekly for herself, she asks that she be allowed counsel fees of $500 to press her suit for separate support which is pending. She submits letters written her before marriage, showing endearing terms used by man from whom she now seeks to live apart.

TEXTILE STRIKE DEADLOCK MAY BE BROKEN

War Labor Board, Called in by Union, Will Ask R. I. Mill Men to Settle

Providence, Aug. 2.—The War Labor Board has taken a hand in the textile strike situation and thirty manufacturers will be asked today to arrive at a settlement as a result of an appeal filed by John Golden, international president of the United Textile Union, after other efforts to arbitrate were fruitless, according to union officials. President Golden says he is willing to abide by the decision of the War Labor Board and will recommend that the men and women return to work pending a decision.

Mill owners say the strike is "unwarranted," and further aver that government production is not impeded as a result of the strike. The mill owners declare that the workers are ready to return to work, but are awaiting word of leaders who they say "misrepresent the facts."

DENIES MISREPRESENTATION.

This charge is denied by President Golden who said: "Ample and fair warning was given mill-owners on May 28 setting forth that fifteen per cent. increase was necessary. Other textile communities granted the request and mill-owners here frowned on our efforts. On June 29 thousands of workers quit their work and after that date the owners gathered and formed an association.

"At the outset they would not talk with us. They also afforded scant treatment to conciliators who offered their good services. One recommendation after another was turned down by the owners. They would not consider the Federal Labor Department. They next refused our offer to have Henry B. Endicott of Boston, member of the Massachusetts Council of Defense, act as arbitrator.

"Unable to get the owners to listen to any talk in the direction of arbitration we appealed to the War Labor Board, which has asked for the names of the mills affected. We are willing to abide by their decisions and return to work pending a decision. That, surely, is patriotic and along the lines of fairness."

STATEMENTS CONFLICT.

President Golden says nearly 6,000 men and women are on strike throughout the State in the textile industry, while W. H. Gildey, president of the Manufacturers' Association, says but 2,500 are on strike.

"Government production is not being delayed as a result of the strike and, while we would like to have the men and women return to work, we feel that the strike is unwarranted," said Mr. Gildey.

James H. MacColl, of the Lorraine Manufacturing Company, believes the strikers will return to work and, while some machinery is at a standstill, government work is satisfactory to Washington authorities.

Labor leaders say the War Labor Board has authority to appoint a referee in the event the mill owners refuse to arbitrate as expected will be offered by the War Labor Board. It is admitted that strikers and mill owners cannot effect a settlement.

Germany Unwilling to Shed Blood for World Liberation

London, August 2.—While the majority of the German press gives great prominence to the statement of von Hintze, the new Foreign Secretary, that Germany is nobly fighting for the "liberation" of Ireland, India and Egypt, the Vorwaerts prints the following:

"Such all-the-world liberation will nowhere be taken as anything but cant. We have still quite a lot of liberating to do at home. With all our hearts we wish success to the Irish the Indians and the Egyptians, but they themselves do not expect that we shall be willing to shed any German blood for their freedom."

REVENGE COMES TO FLIER AT LAST BREATH

Dying in the arms of Ransom Gifford, eighteen-year-old son of Colonel Alden Gifford, head of the Salvation Army in Boston and New England, now at the front in France, a British aviator, who had just been crashed to earth in a desperate triangular battle in the sky, had the satisfaction of witnessing the defeat of his German antagonist by a French plane just before he drew his last breath.

Young Gifford was hauling Salvation Army supplies to hutments along the line when suddenly three big planes circled immediately over his head and opened up a terrific fight, he writes home. In a short time one plane shot downward in flames, and crashed to earth less than 100 feet from Gifford's truck. The young Salvationist ran to the wreckage and after desperate efforts, extricated the broken and bleeding aviator, who was still alive.

Two French soldiers, who had been concealed nearby, ran up and noting the condition of the aviator, raced off in different directions for a doctor and ambulance. Young Gifford held the dying airman in his arms, enabling him to lie back and with fast-closing eyes gaze at the conflict still raging immediately over their heads.

The French plane put the German to rout, whereupon the English fighter, with a smile, relaxed and expired in the arms of the Salvationist.

Gifford states that for a month he has not had his shoes off, and that this is no uncommon occurrence with supply drivers.

BARK SUNK OFF COAST BY ENEMY SUBMARINE

Washington, Aug. 2.—The Portuguese bark Porto was sunk by an enemy submarine about 550 miles off the American coast on July 27, the Navy Department announced.

Eighteen survivors, comprising the entire crew, were landed at an American port by a British steamer.

The Porto was carrying cotton from Savannah, Ga., to Oporto. The bark was destroyed by bombs placed aboard by the U-boat crew.

C. H. Cushing Kills Self

George H. Cushing, thirty-two, former stationary engineer at the Roxbury pumping station, killed himself by shooting at his home, No. 3 Rush street, Somerville. He had been ill with stomach trouble for a month and leaves a wife and stepson.

REPORTED KILLED IN ACTION, RETURNS HOME

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 2.—John J. Allen's wife was about to collect $10,000 life insurance from Uncle Sam who had reported his death in action on May 26, when the ex-soldier husband returned home. Allen was a draftee at Camp Devens, but was discharged as physically unfit. He neglected to notify Mrs. Allen of his discharge and she believed he had gone to France. In the meanwhile he was working on a transport as an ordinary seaman. By some inexplicable error, his name and address got into the casualty lists and Mrs. Allen mourned him for dead.

FRANCIS X. COLLETON APPOINTED A MAJOR

Francis X. Colleton of No. 4 Dennison street, Roxbury, has been appointed major in the Ordnance Department of the National Army.

Major Colleton has been in this service since July, 1917, when he was called to assist in the organization of the equipment division at Washington.

He was commissioned first lieutenant on August 11, 1917, and captain on January 8, 1918. He was ordered to Boston on March 21, 1918, as assistant chief of the Boston district Ordnance Department.

Before entering the service he was employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company as chief plant accountant. He was born in Boston, is married and has four children.

Perry Helps Red Sox

Thanks to Scott Perry, Boston Braves pitcher, the Red Sox have a lead of five and one-half games over the Cleveland Indians. While Babe Ruth was winning a close one from Lefty Leifield, 2-1, Perry gave the Macks a 4-0 victory over Speaker, Wood & Co. Perry wound up his brilliant performance by whiffing three pitchers in the ninth.

Roamer Loses Cudgel and Other Fliers, as He Cracks Record

By ED CURLEY.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., August 2.—Old Roamer once again is king. The popular bay gelding that for years wore the crown of the champion handicap horse of the time was slowly being consigned to the dust heap.

Everything was ready for the obsequies, except that the idol obtained a new lease of life and now once more is enthroned on the laurels when he captured the historic Saratoga Handicap and threw dust in the eyes of Cudgel, War Cloud, Priscilla Mullens, Bondage and Fairy Wand.

Roamer performed the feat in a comfortable manner, for he ran the mile and a quarter in 2:02 1-5, which just knocked one and four-fifths off the old figures, which he himself hung up four years ago.

There was no fluke about Roamer's victory. He hung out with his party until it came time to leave 'em, which was at the turn for home. Then he neighed "farewell" and rushed down to a conquest, which sent him over the line three lengths in front of Cudgel.

Bondage finished third and War Cloud, Priscilla Mullens and Fairy Wand brought up the tail end of the procession.

PROMISING LAD.

Fred Merkle is a rising youth,
A bold and fearless lad, in truth,
And as the days roll on, forsooth,
The lad is growing bolder.
Some future day, it seems to me,
That promising Young lad will be
A famous baseball star, when he
Has grown a few years older.

Baseball is rapidly gaining popularity in Europe. When the war is over it may become the international pastime. Then—then will be the time to mete out fitting punishment to the Kaiser. Sentence him to be an umpire for life.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT

Another story that has to do with Kid McCoy concerns his escape from the clutches of the law back twenty years ago in real movie thriller fashion.

Having whipped about all his formidable foes in the East, the Kid trekked below the Mason and Dixon Line in the spring of 1898 seeking whom he might wallop.

Nick Burley, who had gained a fair reputation, wanted to try conclusions with the Kid—and the Kid obliged him in Hot Springs, Ark.

McCoy toyed with Burley during the first round and knocked him cold in the second. As the Kid was about to step into his dressing room a sheriff accosted him and told him he was under arrest on the charge of prize fighting.

The Kid pleaded for time to change his clothes. The officer agreed and remained outside the door.

As soon as he was dressed, the Kid picked up a revolver that was laying on the table, pulled out a plank from the ramshackle building where his dressing room was located—and beat it in a hurry.

HELD UP PASSING TEAM.

The Kid struck out for Malvern, a town 20 miles away. Just as he was growing footsore, a wagon, on lumbered along—driven by a negro. The Kid jumped into it and, exhibiting the gun to the startled darkey, said:

"I don't know where you intended to go but you're going to drive me to Billy Layton's place. I'm going to flop down in the wagon right under the seat and if you let out a peep, or don't drive direct to Layton's I'll——" and the Kid pointed significantly to the piece of artillery he was carrying.

The terrified negro drove directly to Layton's, who was a friend of the Kid's. When McCoy arrived there he chased the negro into the house ahead of him and then explained his plight to Layton.

"I've heard about it already," Layton told him. "The sheriffs are hunting all around for you. They've pinched Burley and the others. Governor's orders."

He decided that the fight violated the law and wired the authorities to stop it or to make arrests if it had gone one round."

"Which means?" questioned the Kid.

"That you'll have to get out of the state in a hurry," responded Layton.

GOT BY SEARCHING PARTIES.

"Oh," answered the Kid. "That's easy. Where's that darkey?"

The negro was forced to swap his old ragged coat for an almost new one. Layton supplied the Kid with a nondescript pair of trousers and a torn shirt.

Then, while the Kid blacked his hands and face, Layton stuffed some towels under the ragged coat, giving to McCoy the appearance of being a hunchback.

"Now the getaway," grinned the Kid. "Which way to the railroad station? I want to be in St. Louis tomorrow night to referee a fight."

"I'll drive you," said Layton. And he did, the negro being left behind in Layton's house. The ride to the station was a thriller for the Kid, for several times the wagon passed searching parties. They all looked into it—but found no Kid. Then they passed on.

Arriving at the station, Layton and McCoy got out. There were several policemen around, each and every one on the look-out for Kid McCoy.

The humor of the situation would have been sufficient to please any man except the Kid. And probably none other would have elected to tempt Fate as he did because, walking with bowed head and halting step of a hunchback, the Kid went over to one of the policemen and asked him to help him onto the train.

And the policeman did, assisting the Kid into a "Jim Crow" coach in which the Kid remained until the train had passed out of the State of Arkansas.

CURRIE FAVORED OVER SACCO IN C. A. C. CLASH

By RINGSIDE.

Joe Currie, fast-stepping New Haven, Ct., lightweight, and Sailor Sacco, East Boston champion, are in fine fettle for their twelve-round skirmish at the Commercial A. C. tonight.

Currie made himself solid with Hub boxing fans by winning his three starts here in easy fashion.

Coming on as a substitute for Charley Bergin, fellow townie, Currie jumped in against Johnny Buckley and won where he was expected to lose. Next Henri Le Bouef of New Bedford was turned on the New Havenite and what Currie did to him was a-plenty. Jack White, brother of the famous Charley White, was also easy picking for Currie.

In Sacco, Currie faces a different proposition than either of the above mentioned trio. The Sailor is one tough nut to crack. He's proven it more than once in the Hub and his admirers look for him to knock Currie off his winning streak.

Young Leonard, stocky little Chelsea boxer, who took a beating from Battling Burley in the early part of their go last week, coming with a rush in the final rounds, meets the Battler again.

Greek Alger and Charley Miller, a couple of husky youths, are also down to pummel each other for six rounds, while Johnny Gray and Eddie Barcelli furnish the semi-final of eight rounds.

The Crescent A. C., Lowell, is on deck tonight with a fine-looking show. Paddy Owens of Cambridge and Charley Mitchell of Braintree meet in the wind-up event, while Tony Vatlin, Brighton southpaw, hooks up with a good local boy in the semi-final.

SHORT SHIP CIRCUIT; FORECAST FOR TODAY

By GUS DALY.

Worcester, August 2.—Today's card at Glendale Park has four stakes carded for action. The 2:14 pacing stake should see Frank Dewey, unbeaten this season, returned the winner. Another Boston owned racer, Silent Brigadier, looks a trifle the best in the three-year-old trotting division.

Still another Hub speedster should grab off first honors, as Director Todd is "right" once more, and I look for him to catch the judges' eye first in the 2:11 trot.

Violet Patch's race yesterday was an outing, so if she elects to go, the big end of the 2:20 pace should be hers.

Yesterday's events were brimful of action, with close finishes and fast miles ruling throughout. The Boston delegation was in fine spirits at the day's ending, as May Bird delivered in the 2:11 pacing stake. Jess Y. annexed the 2:14 trotting stake, while Carnathan, Pa Fox's pet, secured second money to Radiant in the 2:19 trot.

COVELESKIE VS. MAYS IS CARD

By ED BANG

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—The crucial series is on. The pace-making Red Sox and the runner-up Indians are booked to hook up in a four-game series at League Park, starting today, and, after it is all over, we may tip you off as to just what team will win the pennant.

Right now it looks like a copper-riveted cinch for the Red Sox to cop the gonfalon. But one never can tell what's going to happen in this old baseball.

It was to be Mays vs. Coveleskie today. Ed Barrow plans following with Jones and Bush, with Mays on duty again in the final game. Lee Fohl plans using Bagby tomorrow and then Morton and Coumbe.

As the Grand Circuit races open here Monday, Fohl wants a double-header Sunday. Barrow has not yet given his O. K. to the arrangement.

It is freely predicted the Sox will down the Indians in the four-game series here, but if the dope goes awry, as it did in Boston, and the Indians clean up, they will be very much in the running. But they must win three out of the four games to be given even an outside chance to grab the old flag.

Clevelanders are not overly wrought up over the Indians' pennant chances, especially since the Athletics took their measure yesterday in the easiest sort of fashion.

BRAVES LOSE 21-INNING BATTLE TO CORSAIRS

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Braves and Pirates made history at the Home of Big Things, struggling through twenty-one innings before the verdict finally went to the hostiles, 2 to 0.

Art Nehf, after hurling one of the greatest games in baseball's record, weakened in the twenty-first. Four hits gave the Pittsburghers two scores and victory.

Nehf has the satisfaction, however, of knowing that he shattered the world's record for no-score innings in one ball game, in the big leagues previously, no two teams ever went twenty rounds without a run being registered.

Up to the final frame, Nehf had held the invaders to eight blows.

Mayer, who started for the Pirates, tired in the fifteenth, and Cooper finished up, turning back the Braves in his inimitable way. The Stallings stars had a dozen chances to score during the four-hour matinee, but the rescue hit was always missing.

Don Patrick Ragan was listed to represent the Braves this A. M. with Slapnicka ready for Bendekers.

Hayes and Morrisesy, Marathon Stars, Anwser Call

New York, Aug. 2.—Two former marathon celebrities, Johnny Hayes, who carried the silks of Uncle Sam to victory in the London Olympic marathon of 1908, and Tom Morrissey, who beat Hayes in the Boston marathon the same year, incidentally shaving more than a minute off Tom Longboat's record for the Ashland to Boston course, soon will be "Over There."

Johnny shortly will go abroad as a Knights of Columbus secretary. Tom has enlisted in the navy and has been assigned to a submarine chaser.

Morrissey started his athletic career as a cross-country runner for the Hollywood Inn A. A. in 1905.

100% Service The Year 'Round

Business is peculiar—very sensitive and touchy. It rarely goes where it is not invited, and never stays long unless it is well treated.

Perhaps that's why some stores find August such a dull month. Not expecting much business, their expectations are fulfilled. That's another respect in which this Live Store is different. There's no mid-summer let-up in our service. We keep it as near 100% perfect as is humanly possible all the time.

Consequently our stocks are nearly as complete and varied as earlier in the season, our sales-force as alert and interested, our greater value-giving as prominent and unmistakable. Pleasure, profit, satisfaction—you're sure of those in buying here—always.

This Day in Our History

THIS is the anniversary of the defeat of Black Hawk, in 1832, by General Atkinson, at Bad Axe River. Black Hawk tried to massacre the Americans after refusing to accede to the treaty of the Sac and Fox Indians, ceding their lands east of the Mississippi.

A Big Street Car System

THE street railway system of Buenos Ayres covers an immense mileage, there being 300 miles of line in operation. This fact is the more remarkable when it is remembered that the population of the Argentine city is only about one million and a half.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

What Has Gone Before

A beautiful American girl, Pamela Van Teyl, goes to a London restaurant with Captain Holderness and John Lutchester, where they meet a Mr. Fischer, an American, and Molly Holderness, later young Captain Graham, nicknamed Sandy, who tells them all in loud tones of a wonderful discovery he has made in explosives. The other men hush him up and he goes upstairs to lay aside his hat. He fails to reappear, nor can any trace be found of him. Hassan, one of the servants in the restaurant, rouses the suspicion of Pamela, as do the actions of the Negro band leader. She gains the key to the chapel where she suspects Graham to be confined.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER IV.

"BACK to the hotel, George," she directed the chauffeur. "Don't stop if they call to you from the flats."

The young man sprang up to his seat and the car glided off. Pamela leaned forward and looked at herself in the mirror. There was a shade more color in her face, perhaps, than usual, but her low waves of chestnut hair were unruffled. She used her powder puff with attentive skill and leaned back.

"That's the disagreeable part of it over, any way," she sighed to herself contentedly.

The last of the supper-guests had left Henry's Restaurant, the commissionaire's whistle was silent. The light laughter and frivolous adieux of the departing guests seemed to have melted away into a world somewhere beyond the pale of the unreasoning fog. The little strip of waste ground adjoining was wrapped in gloom and silence. The exterior of the bare and deserted chapel, long since unconsecrate, was dull and lifeless. Inside, however, began the march of strange things. First of all, the pinprick of light of a tiny electric torch seemed as though it had risen from the floor and Hassan, pushing back a trap-door, stepped into the bare, dusty conventicle. He listened for a moment, then made a tour of the windows, touched a spring in the wall, and drew down long, thick blinds. Afterwards he passed between the row of dilapidated benches and paused at the entrance door. He stooped down, examined the keyless lock, shook it gently, stood upwards and downwards as though in vain search of bolts that were never there.

Not His Fault

"Not my fault," he muttered to himself. "Not my fault."

He listened for a moment intently, as though for footsteps outside. The disturbance, however, came from the other end of the building. There was a sharp knocking from the trap-door by which he had ascended. He touched an electric knob. The place was dimly yet sufficiently illuminated. He hastened towards the further end of the place and pulled up the trap-door. A melancholy-looking little procession soon emerged. First of all came Joseph, stepping backwards, supporting the head and shoulders of Graham, still bound and gagged. After him came a dark, swarthy-face wine waiter, who supported Graham's feet. Behind followed Fischer, carrying his silk hat and cane in his hand. He paused for a moment as he stepped on the floor of the chapel, and brushed the dust from his trousers.

"You can take out the gag now," he ordered the two men. "There isn't much about in him."

They laid him upon a couch, and Joseph obeyed the order. Graham's head swung helplessly on one side. His eyes opened, however, and he struggled for consciousness. His lips twitched for a moment. In these long hours he had almost forgotten the habit of speech. The words, when they came, sounded strange to him.

"What—where am I? What do you want with me?"

Fischer laid his hat and stick upon a table, on which also stood a telephone instrument.

"The formula, my young friend," he replied, "for that wonderful explosive of which you spoke in the lobby."

A sudden accession of nervous strength brought something almost like passion into the young man's reply, although to himself there still seemed some unreality in the words which might have come from the walls or the roof—surely not from his lips.

"I'll see you damned first!"

Fischer Smiled

Fischer smiled. The man was good-looking, in his way, but this was a pale and ugly smile.

"My request was merely a matter of courtesy," he remarked. "The difficulty of searching you is not formidable. It would have been undertaken long ago but for the fact that the restaurant has been crowded and gags sometimes slip. Besides, there was no hurry. Observe!"

He leaned over Graham, who for the first time struggled furiously but ineffectually with his bonds. His fingers all the time were straining towards the inside pocket of his coat. Fischer nodded understandingly.

"Allow me to anticipate you," he said.

With a quick thrust he drew a little handful of papers from the pocket of his captive. One by one he glanced them through and flung them on to the floor. As he came towards the end of his search, however, his expression of confident complacency vanished. His lips shrivelled up a little, his eyes narrowed. The last folded sheet of paper—a little perfumed note from Peggy, thanking Sandy for his beautiful roses—he crumpled fiercely into a little ball. He opened his lips to speak, then he paused. A new light broke in upon him. The fury had passed from Sandy Graham's face. In its stead there was an expression of blank astonishment.

"We're Bound to Win With Boys Like You"

A Stirring War Song That Has Become Exceedingly Popular All Over the Country, Music and Words Having a Charm All Their Own

OF course you've heard them singing the new war song, "We're Bound to Win with Boys Like You."

It has won a popular success and the music, as well as the words, have a charm all their own.

Here are the stanzas and chorus:

I saw a gray-haired Mother kiss
her soldier boy good-bye,
Tho in her heart a sigh, not a
tear-drop dimmed her eye,
He'd just received his orders, it was time to march away.
And in that last fond moment, I heard her proudly say:

CHORUS.

It was boys like you at Valley
Forge with Washington,
And boys like you were Minute-
Men at Lexington,
Your built up this wonderful
Nation and then
When Lincoln called for volunteers, who answered again.
It was boys like you who fought
with Grant and Sherman, and with Lee way down in Dixie, too.

And this will always be a land of Liberty, for we're bound to win with boys like you.
We've read on Hist'ry's pages of the deeds our sons have done,
So it's up to ev'ry one now to go and get the Hun.
You're in this fight for freedom, and your cause is just
and right,
When you return from vict'ry,
we'll cheer with all our night.

CHORUS.

It was boys like you, with Farragut's flotilla,
It was boys like you, with
Dewey at Manila,
And with boys rough and ready
you took San Juan Hill,
Whenever you were needed
you have shown Yankee
skill,
It was boys like you, who answered Woodrow Wilson, and are fighting now with Pershing, too,
We've never known defeat,
and Hist'ry will repeat, for we're bound to win with boys like you.

Cecilia of the Pink Roses

RELEASED BY SELECT PICTURES CO.

An Absorbing Picture Show Now Being Shown in the Best Theatres of the Country

By Ann Lisle

"Novelized from the motion picture drama, "Cecilia of the Pink Roses," directed by Julius Steger, produced by the Marion Davies Film Company, Inc., from the book by Katharine Haviland Taylor. Copyright, 1917, by George H. Doran Company.)

(Copyright, 1918, Marion Davies Film Co., Inc.)

THE next afternoon at a little before five Johnny Madden's crimson "speed devil" stopped before an apartment building in the extremely far west 45's.

The boy fairly flung himself from the car, dashed into an ornate hallway and ran into an impassable phalanx composed of one grinning darkey. The phalanx was not implacable. There was a little negotiation consisting of a not too reluctant fee, a paper dollar and a flight upward in an elevator as ornate as the hallway itself. The Valhalla was all mosaic tiling and gilt and white paint and mahogany veneer and Chinese rugs—each an imitation of the thing it sought to be, and each a bit higher colored, more glaring, more emphatic than the already highly accented specialty after which it was patterned.

The little gilt elevator bore Johnny to an upper hallway, and a slim figure, clad in tempestuous orchid and violet chiffons, admitted him to a cheap apartment, cheaply done in the black and gold of the fad of the moment for interior decorating a la China land.

Scent in Air

There was the heavy scent of incense in the air, and Dolly's chiffons breathed forth an exotic perfume which assailed Johnny's senses almost like a blow. He was suddenly tempestuously conscious of the slim little black-haired creature in front of him, who looked tiny and helpless and frail against the black and gold of her living room furniture.

"Aren't you coming out with me?" asked Johnny a bit huffily, after a vain effort to kiss the girl who had charmed him. Baffled in his first attempt at love-making, he was suddenly angrily conscious that Dolly was not dressed for motoring and that she was ignoring all his plans.

"Then if you want to stay here?" asked the girl.

"I don't want to stay here—if you aren't going to be nice to me."

"Don't you think I was—nice to let you come?"

"I think you were wonderful. But now that I'm here, why do you have to be mean to me?"

"I'm not mean—do you think Dolly is mean?" she lisped.

"You're laughing at me, Dolly. You make me sit over here on this stiff wooden chair while you cuddle up all cozy and nice in your pillows, then you expect me to think I'm having a good time."

"You're here—aren't you? And I'm here. Isn't that enough?"

"No, it isn't. I'm crazy about you, you little white rose, and you expect me to just stay across the room and talk about it. Don't you like me, Dolly?"

"You know I like you."

Dolly looked at the boy and smiled wistfully. She was telling the truth—she did like the boy. She shuddered to think what that liking must mean to him.

"That's the first time you've even looked at me—you seem kind of bored now that I am here. I guess I might as well go if you don't care for me any more. Don't you love me a little?"

Johnny got up and crossed to the girl. She looked at him strangely, her lips quivered, she made as if to say something—then glanced apprehensively at a door back of him and shivered.

Johnny in the Trap

"Are you cold, Honey?—cold—and I'm just burning up for you!" asked the boy.

And then, not to be denied, he flung himself down by her side, caught her in his arms and pressed his lips to the little white shoulder his roughness had torn loose from its moorings of chiffon. Dolly gave herself momentarily to his embrace—but again she eyes roved across to the door back of Johnny. It was a French door set off into a wooden lattice work holding little oblongs of glass.

A curtain of China silk, gayly patterned in birds and flowers—what appeared to be a peacock's feasting on pineapples—covered the door. Covered it all but one little triangle. And there the clear glass revealed a shadowy something lurking back of it.

Dolly tore herself from the boy's arms. "I won't let you stay if you treat me like this."

Neither the boy nor the cabaret dancer realized how ridiculous was her assumption of dignity.

"Don't you care anything about me? Don't you want me to show you that I care about you? Why I love you, Dolly, and I thought the other night you—liked me, too."

"That's just it," murmured the girl. "Oh, Johnny, I do believe you honestly—like me. You don't know how much it means to a girl when a fellow like you shows that he cares about her. Why it just means everything.

"Edward, you disobeyed your grandmother when she told you just now not to jump down those stairs." "Grandma didn't tell us not to, papa. She only came to the door and said, 'I wouldn't jump down those stairs, boy,' and I shouldn't think she would, an old lady like her!"

Fraudulent Hair - Remedies

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., a writer of wide renown, says: "The strongest and most powerful curative element of scalp-tonics and hair-dyes is their smell, and the next powerful is their color. Most of them are frauds, pure and simple, and produce no effect whatever except upon the imagination and the nostrils of the users. The most common constituent of them all is alcohol, and the next common probably ammonia or some aromatic oil or extract which has the double advantage of a powerful odor and of producing a mild sense of warmth and local irritation. All of this class are mild irritants to the skin and produce a very temporary reddening by an increase in the amount of blood circulating through the scalp; but this has about as much effect on the hair-bulbs as the beams of the harvest moon have upon growing cabbages." The only sure way to benefit the hair and scalp is to keep them clean and free from dust and disease germs. For this purpose Hurf's Head Wash, the scientific shampoo, is most highly recommended because it contains the Yolks of Eggs, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin and Bay Rum. Any doctor will tell you there are no better things known for cleaning the hair and scalp.—Advertisement.

The Plotters

A SERIAL OF EAST AND WEST

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXIV.

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

ALTHOUGH Clifford Chapin had said that the matter of Lizzie Moore was none of his business, he spent a good deal of thought on it after leaving his mother's room.

Seated on the side porch, he leaned back in a chair in gloomy silence. It was strange how innocent country people could be—how easily deceived by the wiles of women and the lies of men.

Yet his father was clever enough in some ways, Clifford reflected. He had come to Cedarhurst and made a clear plan of action so far as the purchase of the farm was concerned. The owner, Douglas Wade, could know nothing of what was passing in the older man's mind.

And so Miss was Amos Chapin that he was tolerant of certain ideas of Wade's that, at another time, would have inspired him to rebellion. There, for instance, was John Butler. Douglas Wade had sent this scientific farmer out here, as Amos suspected, to spy on him and to see just how matters were progressing. Amos was going to treat him with ordinary civility because it was to his interest to do so.

Clifford could understand that. Yet—what about Lizzie Moore—so-called?

Of course, she was not Lizzie Moore. He had suspected that soon after his arrival here. He might not have suspected it had his mother not told him with such circumstantiality how her cousin's daughter happened to be staying with her, and what a nice girl she was. He had wondered at the time why his parent had taken so much trouble to go into details and why she had been so anxious to have him understand the situation.

Yes, he had always fancied there was something strange about it all. As he had not known what it was, he had determined to find out.

He remembered that his mother's cousin had several daughters. This girl's brusque declaration that she had no sister had been the last bit of evidence that he had needed to prove that she was not a relative, but was acting a part.

He was certain that he had the answer to this question in the letter that she had received this morning. It was written by a man. The handwriting indicated that. So did her keen interest in its contents.

Clifford had not noted the sender's address on the letter until he had picked it up from the steps where the girl had dropped it. Then, in the light of the revelation she had made to him an hour earlier he had read the address on the corner of the envelope.

He had heard his father say that Douglas Wade lived in Wyoming. Then this girl was—

He broke off his reflections abruptly, confronted by the question—Why did his parents have her here?

One thing was clear to his sophisticated mind. They believed the girl to be good and pure—just what she appeared to be. He himself would have believed the same of her but for circumstantial evidence. He had thought this of her until the receipt of that letter this morning.

Then the thought had come to him that some man had sent her here and with a purpose.

That man must be Douglas Wade. His only purpose must be to give the girl a quiet, secluded home in the country, where she could rest and be safe during the Summer until he could join her for his vacation.

Clifford looked about him. It was noontime—the hour that Amos Chapin was in the habit of taking a short rest in the house. Even now he was coming up the long path from the barns across the walk to meet him.

He would surprise his parent before he had time to think out an evasive reply to his questions.

"Well, Cliff," the farmer greeted his son as he reached his side.

"Pa!" the exclamation was so sudden that the elderly man started violently. "That girl upstairs is not my cousin! I know that!"

"Well, well, and what of it?" the farmer stammered.

"Why do you have her here?" the son demanded.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

A Snob!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen and am considered good looking and can converse well. I am working at a bookkeeper and typist at present in a downtown office, making fourteen dollars per week.

I am under the impression that I am a daughter of God, just as well as the rich girl is. I am not poor, but at the same time I am not rich. We (our family) have enough to eat and clothe ourselves, but we haven't enough to have anything luxurious. It is always my wish to meet some rich young boys and girls. Now please tell me how I can do this. I have one rich uncle, and he thinks he is different because he has more money.

K.

YOUR trouble is easy to diagnose.

You are a snob! Of course you are a daughter of God as well as are the wealthy, but so are the other people in moderate circumstances away from whom you wish to climb. Suppose you work, work hard, try to improve yourself and to learn to love beauty and character instead of money. Coming in contact with rich people won't bring you one thing, because just now you can only attract second-rate, mediocre people. Make yourself first class. Study and improve your mind. Do a bit of war work. Try to get on in your office and don't condemn yourself to the ugly poverty of ignorance and snobbery.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them with Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any druggist under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.—Advertisement.

Do you want skin-health?

If you are suffering from eczema or some similar distressing, embarrassing skin eruption, why don't you get rid of it by using Resinol Ointment? Unless the trouble is due to some serious internal disorder, it quickly yields to Resinol, and in most cases is easily healed by it. The first application usually stops itching and makes the skin feel cool and comfortable. We recommend it with the utmost confidence because of its harmless ingredients. Aided by Resinol Soap it acts even more quickly.

Resinol

Ointment and Resinol Soap also help to clear away pimples. Sold by all druggists and dealers in toilet goods. Trial of each, free. Dept. 2-S, Resinol, Baltimore Md.

GIRLS EAGER TO SWIM FOR PRIZES

Fill Blanks, Girls, and Join in Big Swimming Race

Entry for Boston AMERICAN Girls' Championship Swimming Race:

NAME .....

AGE .....

ADDRESS .....

.....

.....

Come on in, girls, the water is fine!

That is the slogan of the editor in charge of the Boston AMERICAN Swimming Carnival to be held in the Charles River Basin Saturday afternoon, August 24.

That the event will outclass any of the aquatic sports held in the basin is evidenced by the manner in which the swimming girls in and about Boston are taking hold of the proposition.

For thirteen years the AMERICAN has conducted a carnival of this sort, and all have been notable successes. The coming event will be the fourteenth held under the auspices of this paper.

Some of the stars in the swimming world, whose names also stand out prominently in theatrical circles, earned their fame in these carnivals.

There isn't a better place in the world, and that is saying a great deal, for a swimming carnival and race than the Charles River Basin.

The broad esplanade and the Harvard Bridge form ideal places from which to watch the entire race. These vantage points will accommodate the thousands of spectators who turn out to see the participants in the AMERICAN Swimming Carnival.

Miss Olive Holland of Wollaston is one of the first swimming girls to enter her name as a contestant. In response to an invitation to take part, Miss Holland says:

"I will be glad to enter one or more of the contests."

That shows the spirit of the swimming girls. There is no reason in the world why 100 or more cannot take part in this swim. The swimming editor registered more than that number several years ago, and, when the pistol shot that started the great race was heard, there was a splash in the water that caused much merriment.

Mothers are deeply interested in this great carnival and race. There isn't a school girl who does not remember that mothballed quotation which is apropos here to emphasize the care the AMERICAN is exercising to safeguard participants.

The Metropolitan Park Commission has provided a tent in which the young women may prepare for the swim. A doctor will be on hand to give medical advice, and several nurses will be in attendance to care for the needs of the girls. Nothing has been left undone in this respect.

The course will be kept clear of boats to give participants in the swim all the space they desire to outdistance each other in the race. In case a girl feels too fatigued and wishes to withdraw from the race a corps of expert life savers under the leadership of John J. (Maffit) Flaherty will be ready to pull her out of the water at a moments notice.

MENACE IN GLARE OF TROLLEY CAR LIGHTS

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

Every sane motorist knows that the glaring headlight is a nuisance and a menace to safety and will do all in his power to co-operate with the authorities to stamp out this evil, but that self same motorist wonders why it is that the large interurban trolley cars, and even those that operate within the city limits, are allowed to have headlights that throw a glaring light which is positively dangerous to all who use the highways at night.

Several instances have been brought to the attention of the AMERICAN in which the operators of cars had narrow escapes from serious accidents due to the sudden blinding of the drivers caused by the powerful headlights on the trolleys. A driver coming around a curve and meeting one of these cars is helpless and cannot see what is in front of him.

There are many motorman who realize this and dim their headlights when they see an auto coming, but unfortunately there are many who are not so thoughtful.

If this is brought to the attention of the Highway Commission it will undoubtedly be remedied and in fact little inconvenience would be suffered by the motormen as their work in driving a car cannot be nearly as difficult as that of the driver of an automobile and the headlight of a trolley car need not necessarily be so brilliant.

"SUBURBAN" CADILLAC MODEL A SUCCESS

The Cadillac Company is showing a new model which is called the "Suburban," and it is meeting with much favor. It is a closed model, single compartment machine, designed to accommodate seven people, and built for touring comfort in all weathers.

The fact that it is practically a touring car with the windows all lowered and can readily be made snug and comfortable for the worst kind of weather appeals to the suburbanite who has to use his car or rather does use it for transportation necessities much more than he formerly did.

The many features which add to the comforts of the passengers do not in any way detract from the beautiful lines of the car.

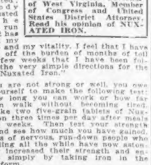
United States Judge Atkinson, Former Governor, Gives Opinion of Nuxated Iron

Says The Results He Has Obtained Have Been Simply Marvelous

It helps put vim and renewed energy into the veins of the weak, "run-down," infirm and aged—Often increases their strength in two weeks' time.



United States Judge G. W. Atkinson, former Governor of West Virginia, Member of Congress and United States Diplomat. Read his opinion of NUXATED IRON.

Of great importance to the public generally should be the opinion given and stated iron by United States Judge Atkinson. For twenty years Judge Atkinson has been in the public service as Judge of the United States Court of Claims, Governor, Member of Congress, and United States Diplomat, etc. He has had vast experience with the truth from evidence on the one hand, and the false on the other. Naturally interested as the French call it, has been introduced in this country, it has taken the people by storm. Druggists everywhere are talking about its immense sale, it is being estimated that over three million people annually are using it in this country alone. It has been highly endorsed and prescribed by well-known physicians like Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, formerly Visiting Physician, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City. It has been used by many prominent men like Hon. Lee M. Shaw, former Presidential Cabinet Official, former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Presidential nominee Charles Richard R. Kenney, at present Asst. Judge Advocate General, U. S. Army, and unusually strong testimonials are being received from persons enjoying high social positions. Former Health Commissioner H. Serr of Chicago says it ought to be prescribed by every physician and used in every hospital in this country.

These are thousands of people who are nervous, run-down, weak and anaemic, who lack energy and vitality and who feel the need of something to build them up and strengthen their nerves and blood veins, but they do not know what to take. It is therefore very valuable to have it said like Judge Atkinson go into the merits of Nuxated Iron, test it on himself and then come out frankly and boldly and tell the people about it. Judge Atkinson says:

"Only this Spring I have tried your famous preparation, Nuxated Iron, as a tonic and restorative following on the rigors of the past winter. The results have been simply marvelous. I have never had recourse to a medicine whose results were so satisfactory, so complete and so free from any of the incidental complications which are frequently the case with many of the drugs and medicaments. I have found out how to use Nuxated Iron to perfection, and I now recommend it to my friends in the strongest terms of mental and physical debilitation. I have used every Nuxated Iron preparation and my vitality, I feel that I have dropped off the burden of months of toil in the few weeks that I have been following the very simple directions for the use of Nuxated Iron.

If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test and see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were adding years to their lives now acknowledge increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron which has been used by Judge Atkinson, and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians is not a secret remedy, for the formula is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products which often injure the teeth, make them black and spoil the stomach, the manufacturers guarantee unlimited and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY BOSTON, FRIDAY, AUG. 2, 1918. LIBERTY

NEW REGIMENTS ARE RAPIDLY ORGANIZED

Men of 73rd and 74th Already Learning Intricacies of Modern Warfare

Camp Devens, August 2—Organization of the Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth regiments of the new Seventy-fourth Division is progressing so rapidly that all men chosen or volunteering for service will be much farther advanced than any new division probably ever organized at any cantonment in the country.

The new men are already being trained in the latest implements of war, although they have hardly located in their new barracks.

With the arrival of the Thirty-sixth Regiment, which was formerly a unit of the regular army, but under the new order from Washington loses its identity and becomes part of the United States army, the organization will be complete.

New England Negroes numbering 1,246 have arrived and are quartered in the barracks formerly occupied by the heavy field artillery and officers have been appointed and will start immediately organizing the men into the 15th battalion, which will be composed entirely of colored men.

New Captains appointed to serve in the depot brigade until assignment to active outfit are: Lieutenants William P. Hemenway, Boston; Charles H. Martin, Worcester; George C. Phipps, Manchester-by-the-Sea; and Roy B. Kenyon, Jamaica Plain.

Second lieutenants advanced to that of first lieutenants are Donald C. Thompson of Amherst and Willard G. Knoblof of Illinois.

Lieutenant Kendall A. Sanderson of Lynn, in charge of the postoffice unit today, has been transferred to the receiving station where he will succeed Captain George C. Tait, who has been appointed camp personnel officer and has located at divisional headquarters.

Three hundred men reported for service in the military police and have been instructed in their duties. Some of the new men are former police officers.

Harvard men training in the officers' school of the college at Lancaster learned some of the activities or real army life by visiting the ranges, trenches and camps of the division and Colonel Paul Azan, French army instructor to many of the Government schools, visited divisional headquarters and met the officers temporarily in charge of the cantonment.

"Jack" Archer, singing instructor of the camp, will have a monster singing festival Saturday morning at 7 o'clock on the parade ground of the fifth battalion, depot brigade, for the new recruits.

John Searry, a former salesman for the Standard Oil Company, who just arrived home from Java, visited his local board in Dedham to inquire his place on the list, and when he discovered that he would not be called for several weeks, requested that he be sent to the camp immediately, and he has been assigned to the 17th Company, Depot Brigade.

Dr. Earl G. Orcutt of Milford, a dentist and former lieutenant of the National Guard, has been assigned to the Depot Brigade as a private, having been drafted by his local board.

Worcester recruits were visited by a delegation of the W. R. C and veterans of the Civil War.

EDITORIAL

Men of the army and navy have been accorded by the Legislature the privilege of voting at the next State election. They should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity.

Men in the service realize more than anybody else that the country is at war and men of substantial standing should be chosen for the high positions of political control.

The question of party politics should be eliminated, yet every man should exercise his right of suffrage, and it must be done within the present month.

If a resident of Massachusetts and you desire to express your choice for the important office of United States Senator register now with the Secretary of State.

Write Secretary Langtry for an application for "absentee voting."

Give your name as it appears on the voting list; voting address and present address. You will then receive a blank which must be filled not later than September 3 in order that you may vote at the election November 5.

Do not wait until it is too late and then regret it.

DO IT NOW.

ATHLETES MAKE READY FOR RADIO MEET

Many Crack Track and Field Men at School Send in Entries

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, August 2.—One of the biggest field and track meets ever held in Cambridge is scheduled for Soldier's Field September 7.

Among the Radio school students are some of the crack performers in the ranks of college men from the West and Middle West and a number of these have already begun training for the meet.

Ensign Cronin has been selected to have general charge of the meet, and numerous entries are already in his hands.

If present plans are carried out the big barracks on Cambridge Common will be opened, after several postponements, the middle of next week.

Outside of persons directly connected with the school and the contractors and their employes, very few persons realize the size and importance of this new home for the school. It is built upon the site of barracks once occupied by soldiers of the Revolutionary and the Civil wars, and within the enclosure is the spot where Washington assumed command of the Continental army and delivered an address that is familiar to almost every schoolboy.

Many of the people of Cambridge hope, therefore, that some appropriate exercises will be arranged for the day when the gates of the big enclosure are thrown open for the first time for the procession of white-uniformed Radio boys who will pass through in large numbers in the months to come.

Strange as it may seem the Radio school up to the present time has been without any appropriate place to exhibit the national colors. This lack is being remedied. A flagpole that will be one of the highest in this part of the country is nearing completion in front of Pierce Hall and will be dedicated with appropriate exercises by Commanding Officer Ayer and associates in a few days.

WHO'S "US?"

By Morton Birge.

("American armies do not frighten us," says the Kaiser.—News Note.)

The Kaiser says that in this fuss
"Americans don't frighten us."
What fortitude in such a muss!
But whadda ya mean "Us?"

The Kaiser sure is partly right,
He isn't in the line of fight,
But Friday, in the line of sight,
Asks "Whadda ya mean 'Us?'"

The German soldiers well may cry:
"The Kaiser doesn't mind, but why
In Himmel won't he specify?"
Ach, whadda ya mean "Us?"

Get the Ticket-Buying Habit on the Elevated

It Will Speed Up the Service and Lessen the Over-Crowding All Along the Line

Riders on the Elevated will find it greatly to their advantage to form the habit of buying tickets, five at a time, as they are urged to do by the public managers of the lines. Once the practice becomes general, they will be surprised to find how much this very small bit of foresight on their part will do to speed up the service and lessen overcrowding in rush hours, both in the subway stations and in the cars all along the line.

If the request is not generally heeded, the inconvenience of making change for the seven-cent fare will certainly lengthen the stops of the pay-as-you-enter cars, lengthen their running time, and make the overcrowding worse than ever. Here is a fine opportunity for the public to take a hand in making the management of this great public utility BY the public and FOR the public, instead of by private interests for private interests, a grand success.

We should all remember that this fare increase, inevitable for the moment, is a temporary arrangement only, and that the public trustees, whose only interest is to win public approval by supplying the best possible service at the lowest possible cost, will reduce the fare again just as soon as the run-down property has been brought back to an up-to-date condition and the cost of material and supplies becomes normal again.

Neither of these conditions can be greatly helped by anything that the public can do, BUT PASSENGERS CAN HELP THE MANAGEMENT TO REDUCE UNNECESSARY DELAYS AND TO CUT OUT UNNECESSARY OPERATING EXPENSES, and thereby do their part toward hastening the return of five-cent fares. This first suggestion by the trustees of a way in which they can be helped to reduce the fares at the earliest possible moment is a good one, and we hope it will meet with a hearty and general response.

Private mismanagement has brought on us the necessity of the seven-cent fares, and we know that once raised they would never under private management be reduced. UNDER PUBLIC MANAGEMENT WE HAVE OUR ONE AND ONLY CHANCE of getting good transportation at a fair cost. Let us all make the best of the chance now that we have it.

Henry Ford for the United States Senate

An Important Event in the History of Self-Government

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Henry Ford is a candidate for election to the United States Senate from Michigan. It isn't necessary to tell you that he will be elected.

He will be elected in spite of the most savage open and underground fight against him that dishonest organized money can possibly arrange.

He is hated because he pays the best wages to his workmen. Big owners of corporations say, "That is setting a pernicious example." They do not like it because they have to increase THEIR payrolls.

He is disliked because in additiou to giving the highest pay to workmen, he charges the lowest possible price for his product, used by millions of Americans.

Big corporation men say, "That is most pernicious and unbusinesslike. If you have a thing that the public wants, likes and needs, RAISE YOUR PRICE. It is the American businesslike way."

Henry Ford is hated especially by all those belonging to the class of special privilege because he favors Government ownership of railroads and other natural public monopolies.

The classes of special privilege, through their tame corporation lawyers and officeholders, have been in the habit of sweeping aside Government ownership advocates as mere theorists.

But they cannot call theorist the man who has done more than any hundred others in America to solve the problem of quick, cheap transportation.

They know that in the Senate Ford will work convincingly and earnestly, speaking with the authority of gigantic industrial success, on these lines.

First, for high wages to the workers.

Second, for the lowest price, commensurate with fair profit, to the public.

Third, for ownership by the public of natural monopolies, railroads, etc., that the public should own.

Henry Ford in the Senate, working with other wise, well-balanced, conservative radicals, will be about as pleasing to the special privilege gentlemen as was George Washington to George III. in the early days.

The election which will send Henry Ford to the Senate will be an interesting milestone in the history of this republic. And it ought to have educational value for the men that are fighting Ford. If they had intelligent foresight, which they have not, they would be glad to have such a man as Ford in government, saving them from today's mistakes and tomorrow's regrets, which a Legislature made up of their own lawyers will surely bring upon them.

Mr. Ford's position in the country is one to be envied. He has tens of millions, and every man wishes he had more. He works for his own Government and for the allies without profit to himself.

He is taking the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate at the request of President Wilson. If the Republicans of Michigan had any wisdom, they would make the best of an unpleasant dose of medicine, put him on their ticket and avoid the humiliation that is coming to them when the election is over.

Humorous and numerous are the efforts that the enemies of Government ownership are making against Ford's election.

They call him a pacifist. He WAS a pacifist, before we entered the war. So were all other Americans except profiteers and their hangers-on. All wanted peace, from the President down, if it could be had on honorable terms—this was set forth repeatedly in the President's addresses to this and other nations.

In peace Ford was for peace, in war he is for war.

He is doing more for this country, industrially, than any other single man. There is this difference between him and some of the others—he is doing it without profit to himself.

The "vested interests" say that Ford is a theorist. The voters will reply that they like his theory, which is, "Workmen and the public come first, and other things after."

BOOK OF JOB INSPIRES THOUGHTS OF FANCY

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

IN that greatest masterpiece of literature, the Book of Job, there is a description of the day when the sons of God appeared before him, and Satan came also.

"And the Lord said unto Satan: Whence comest thou? And Satan answered the Lord and said: From going to and fro in the earth and from walking up and down in it."

Satan did not particularize further regarding his activites, but just as much as he admitted has always struck me as the complete description of the ideal life—"going to and fro in the earth and walking up and down in it," with ample leisure to observe, to draw deductions from those observations, and to put one's finger on the motives that govern the action of people.

The Real Interest

No matter what the object of your observations may be, whether it is a human being or a work of art or an abstract science, its real interest lies in the fact that it can be viewed from various angles.

The old saying, that there are two sides to every question is only half true. There are always many sides to every human story.

This is occasionally brought home to me in various ways. Several months ago I got a forlorn little letter from a mother telling me of the unhappiness her daughter caused her. She said the girl was clever and held an excellent position, but that she was always irritable and ill-tempered at home. I published this letter with some remarks of my own, and very soon received a letter from the daughter which I also inserted in an article.

She gave the other side of the story. She explained that her duties were exacting, and that when she came home in the evening her mother ceaselessly plied her with all sorts of questions in regard to her work. It would not have been so difficult to bear if the mother had been content to wait until she had had something to eat. And in addition, she said, she could not make it understood that she was not at liberty to discuss her employer's business affairs. There you get the same facts from two different angles.

A Man's Story

I have recently had a similar experience. I saw an account in a newspaper of a man who had made an affidavit to the effect that he was a nervous wreck from too much red tape and iron discipline in the home. It struck me as such an unusual and amusing plea to present in divorce proceedings that I used it in one of my articles as an illustration of the horrors of efficiency carried to its nth power, and which, according to the published affidavit, even attempted to regulate the cat's appetite.

Now the other angle of the subject has presented itself, as the following letter will show:

"My Dear Mrs. Woodrow: I read your articles every time I see one. I like them awfully well, and I think you've taught me a lot about a good many things; so now I am taking the liberty of setting you right about something, and I fancy I am not wrong in thinking you big enough to take it in the spirit in which I write.

Her Opinion

"I am referring to your recent article on efficiency. I give you due credit for saying at the start of it that you had only a reportorial note to go on. But didn't it strike you as a little bit silly for a man to admit his inability to cope with the petticoat tyranny he so graphically pictured in his defense? Would it be possible for any one to waste much sympathy on a masculine specimen, over six feet tall, who didn't have the gumption to regulate his affairs instead of running away from them?

"As a matter of fact, this wife is very far from the able tyrant she is made out to be. She is just a poor, little, sick, miserable bit of a woman. And be very sure, my dear Mrs. Woodrow, the "persecuted husband" has not drowned his worries by plunging into the battlefields of Europe. Are you a good enough sport to write another article on the subject of men who are neither fish, fowl nor good red herring; who are neither upholding their honor at home nor following their country's flag abroad?

CZECHS AND SLOVAKS IN AUSTRIA'S GRASP

By Professor E. Jordan

THE Czechs and Slovaks come into history in the second half of the ninth century. At that time they formed a part of the great Moravian empire of Swatopluk. They were already coming into collision with the Germans.

It was a German intrigue that caused the failure of the great scheme of St. Method, the apostle of the Slavs, to give them a national liturgy, in conjunction with Rome, to make them a third branch of the Universal Church.

Owing to this failure the Slav world found itself condemned to religious dismemberment, to that division between Latin and Orthodox which has been one of its misfortunes.

German Influence

On the other hand, at the beginning of the tenth century the Hungarian invasion destroyed the Moravian Empire and cut off southern Slavs from northern Slavs. The eternal foes of the Slav race could already be seen at work.

Since the tenth century, Bohemia, under her national dukes of the Przmyslid family, has been subjected to German influence. She received from Germany Christianity according to the Latin ritual, partly under compulsion; for Germany religious propaganda has always been a means of political domination.

The dukes felt the attraction of a civilization then superior to theirs; in exchange for the title of king they allowed themselves to be incorporated into the empire.

Such was the policy, dynastic rather than national, but otherwise brilliant, pursued by the great Przmyslids of the thirteenth century—Ottaker I. (1197-1230), who definitely acquired the royal title; Ottaker II. (1253-1278), who conquered Austria, Styria, Carniola and Carinthia; conquests which, if they had been preserved, would have thrown a bridge between northern Slavs and southern Slavs.

Bohemia Encircled

But Bohemia was becoming half Germanized. At the court and among the nobility German customs and speech were the fashion; the towns were filling with German merchants.

Lastly, the working of the mines and the clearing of the forests caused the Germans to settle very thickly in the mountainous districts encircling Bohemia. Bohemian ethnology was beginning to assume the aspect which it has preserved. Some degree of national spirit still persisted, however, and Ottaker II. contrived to appeal to it when setting out upon the struggle against the founder of the house of Austria, Rudolph of Hapsburg, in which he was to lose his life and Bohemia her conquests.

Witness his alliance with the Polish princes, founded, says the treaty itself, "upon nature and kinship of blood"; witness his appeal to the Polish nation: "If Bohemia, your bulwark, is vanquished, those insatiable Germans will stretch out and seize you, too, with their greedy hands."

Language Restored

The foreign dynasty of the Luxemburgs, which was French as much as German, favored a Czech revival. It was chiefly the part played by Charles IV. (1346-1378), German Emperor, but "stepfather to Germany and loving father to Bohemia," as Maximilian will call him later.

Although, by the Golden Bull, he sanctioned the incorporation of Bohemia into Germany, he also sanctioned her autonomy. He restored to the Czech tongue the standing of official language; he obtained the erection of Prague, until then dependent on Mainz, into an archbishopric; he founded there a monastery practising the Palaoslav ritual; he also founded (1348) the university and embellished his capital with admirable monuments, built by Frenchmen or inspired by French models; in a word, he raised Bohemia to the first rank.

Under his successor Wenceslas begins the Hussite movement, which it is not our business to judge from the religious standpoint, but about which it is essential to state that it was national as much as religious.
